CAROL IN NAZI GUARD PACT

Rumania Seen Lining Up With Germany, Russia

BUCHAREST, March 16 (INS)—Signalizing removal of a sharp point of controversy between Rumania and Nazi Germany, King Carol today received in audience 250 members of the pro-Fascist Iron Guard, who pledged their allegiance to the crown.

The men were among hundreds recently released from prisons and concentration camps by order of the King, who previously had outlawed this once powerful political group which favors firm cooperation with Germany.

A definite move by King Carol away from his tie-ups with the Anglo-French allies in favor of closer friendship with the Reich was seen in a significant announcement that the monarch has patched up his difficulties with the Iron Guardists.

CLOSER NAZI TIES

The future results of the end of this estrangement could not be hazarded. Government spokesmen went out of their way to deny that Germany had demanded inclusion of an Iron Guard leader in the Rumanian cabinet, but all indications pointed to increasing power and prestige of the Fascist faction.

(Associated Press dispatches from Bucharest stated that a Rumanian military mission, now in Berlin, has been told Russia could be persuaded to sign a 25-year non-aggression pact with Rumania and that Hungary would pledge not to press territorial revision demands for 10 years.

(Rumania, which already has a British-French pledge of aid against aggression, holds territory once possessed by Russia and Hungary.

NEW NAZI U-BOAT DRIVE ON

PARIS, March 16 (AP)—Sinking of two German submarines was reported by French naval sources today with the comment that Germany apparently was dispatching a new wave of U-boats to prey upon shipping.

There were indications, naval men said, the submarines which had been at sea since February were returning to their bases to be replaced by others.

One submarine was sunk by an armed British trawler, the French informants said.

(Such a sinking was reported by British seamen Thursday; it was not clear whether the French and British versions referred to the same incident.)

LONDON, March 16 (INS)—The Netherlands government today advised all shipping companies to suspend sailings until further notice, it was stated in a Reuter dispatch quoting the Amsterdam Telegraaf today.

LONDON, March 16 (AP)—The admiralty announced today the British naval trawler Peridot struck a German mine and sank yesterday with no loss of life.

ALLIED CABINETS DUE FOR SHAKEUP

By International News Service

Both Paris and London buzzed with reports today that far-reaching changes are imminent in the French and British Cabinets, designed to strengthen the allied military machine against Germany.

Paris heard that Premier Edouard Daladier would relinquish his post as war minister in favor of Gen. Maurice Marie-Gustav Gamelin, giving the commander-in-chief of the Allied armies a powerful political as well as a military role.

In London, there were predictions that Minister of Supply Leslie Burgin, a target of frequent criticism, would be removed in a general cabinet reshuffle predicted for Easter time. Sir Samuel Hoare, lord privy seal, and Sir Kingsley Wood, air minister, also were mentioned as possibilities for demotion.

The London reports predicted the possibility of greater Laborite-Liberal representation in the revised cabinet.

Hull Scoffs At Kennedy Report

WASHINGTON, March 16 (INS) — Secretary of State Hull today issued a formal denial of report carried by the German official news agency that relations between Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. ambassador in London, and the British government have become "strained" because of Kennedy's alleged criticism of British war policy.

"This is clearly intended to be a trouble-making story," Secretary Hull said. "It is wholly unsupported by any facts."

British, Nazi Fliers in Raids

LONDON, March 16 (AP)—The British and German air forces exchanged raids within the past 24 hours, the air ministry announced today, with the British making an "extensive" flight over Poland and a German bomber clashing with the British coastal patrol in a running fight.

A ministry communique said that air activities of the last 24 hours included "an extensive night flight over Polish territory by the aircraft bomber command and an engagement between the aircraft of the coastal command and an enemy bomber."

"During a running fight in which the enemy repeatedly attacked, damage was seen to be inflicted," the communique continued. "The enemy aircraft finally escaped in the clouds."

200,000 TO SEE SO. BOSTON PARADE

'Tis a glorious day for the Irish today and a great day for American patriots of every race. And 'tis a great day for South Boston where doors were open and arms outstretched to 200,000 visitors who came for a double celebration.

They came—Irishmen, and those of most every other race—to celebrate expulsion of the British in 1776 and to revere as well the memory of Ireland's beloved St. Patrick.

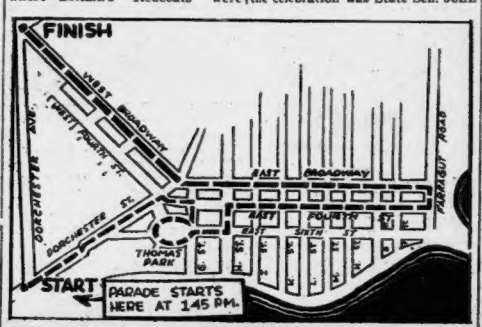
They came early and they came in such numbers that the tiny peninsula fairly groaned with their weight. For many it was a pilgrimage back to the place of their birth and they brought thousands of visitors with them.

RECORD PARADE SEEN

From early morning, South Boston homes were open to visitors and they still will be open tonight after the big Evacuation Day parade, climactic highlight of the celebration, is long over.

For that parade, 20,000 marchers also made the trek to South Boston awaiting for 1:45 p. m. to swing a colorful five-mile loop in perhaps the largest parade the district ever has seen.

The first official observance came at 10:30 a. m. at Dorchester Heights, where Britain's "Redcoats" were driven out of Boston. Orator for the celebration was State Sen. John E. Kerrigan.



ROUTE OF EVACUATION DAY PARADE

All of the nation's armed forces and virtually all of the military and veteran organizations will leave the starting point in Andrew sq. and swing down to D st. and Broadway for formal greetings to Governor Saltonstall and Mayor Tobin.

Heading the parade will be Marshal Edward J. "Knocko" McCormack—perhaps astride his publicized dray horse "Jerry."

The right of line, as customary, will be taken by the regular army units and the sailors and the marines. Also out in force will be the National Guard units and members of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish War Veterans and fraternal, religious and civic organizations. Church and school cadets and Boy Scouts will trail the veterans' detachments.

The parade route is as follows:

Dual Probe in 'Naval Agent' Death Mystery

Punctuated by the vigorous complaint of a Harvard student son, a probe was being conducted by Cambridge police and naval authorities today into the mystery death of a "secret" naval agent.

The victim, Charles Ormand, 62, who died at Cambridge City Hospital after his arrest on a charge of drunkenness, was described as a civilian expert on secret duty at Charlestown Navy Yard and a one-time associate of Thomas Edison.

Ormand's youngest son, Chester, 23, Harvard Law School student, expressed himself as astounded by the intoxication charge advanced by Cambridge police.

"My father never took a drink in his life," the youth declared. "There's something wrong about this whole affair. From the moment I was told by police that my father was seriously ill, I have received little or no co-operation, either from police or hospital authorities."

After a post mortem examination, Medical Examiner David C. Dow announced that death was natural, with a cerebral hemorrhage as the immediate cause.

COLLAPSED IN CELL

Ormand was arrested early Wednesday when he was found in a doorway in Cambridge st., East Cambridge, police said. A few hours later, he collapsed in the detention cell at East Cambridge jail and was rushed to the hospital at the direction of Sheriff Joseph M. McElroy.

At that time, his face was badly bruised and cut, although police had reported there were no marks of violence on his face or body a short time before.

Advised of the unusual circumstances of the case, Judge Arthur P. Stone ordered Police Chief Timothy Leahy to conduct an investigation. Because of Ormand's work, it was reported naval authorities had quietly joined the probe.

Before entraining for his home in Lancaster, Pa., with his father's body, young Ormand intimated that his family may demand a probe of the case.

His father, he said, was employed

ILLNESS HOLDS UP CONNOLLY TRIAL

Trial of former Clerk of Suffolk Superior Civil Courts John Patrick Connolly and his alleged "goodwill fund" collector, William T. Conway, was unexpectedly halted today by illness of the government prosecutor, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle.

He was confined to his West Roxbury home with a severe attack of laryngitis.

Postponement of final arguments and charge until Monday was announced by Judge George F. Leary.

TRIAL IS HELD UP

Addressing the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court jury which has been locked up for two weeks while hearing evidence on conspiracy and bribe-solicitation charge against Connolly and Conway, Judge Leary said, in part:

"On your account, gentlemen, I dislike to make this announcement. I must inform you, however, that Mr. Doyle is suffering from throat trouble so severe that he cannot use his voice at all today and is confined to his home under doctor's care."

"It will be necessary, therefore, to adjourn court until Monday. You will hear final arguments by counsel then, and I will instruct you on the law.'

GIVES JURY ADVICE

"This is a great civic duty—one of the greatest—that you are performing. There is consolation in that.

"I will endeavor to see that your week-end is made as pleasant as possible."

Judge Leary requested members of the jury to keep their minds open on issues of the case, pending arguments and charge.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle's throat ailment began troubling him earlier in the week, but he insisted on continuing with the trial.

In event he is unable to appear in court Monday, closing argument for the government will be made either by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley or by Asst. Dist. Atty. Edward M. Sullivan, it was announced.

Dog Eludes Capture on Icy River

Spurns Beefsteak Trap; Flees on Hotfoot

After out-smarting and out-maneuvering a score of would-be rescuers for almost 24 hours, a frolicsome collie dog, supposedly "marooned" on treacherous Charles River ice, apparently wearied of his celebrity role today.

With a defiant "Nya, nya, you can't get me" in every wag of his stubby tail, the ice-bound pup strolled casually ashore, just out of reach of pursuing police and Animal Rescue League agents.

Then, with three police cruising cars and a phalanx of noose-brandishing A. R. L. dog-catchers at his heels, he vanished amid an auto jam at the West Boston bridge traffic circle.

BEEFSTEAK NO LURE

An "alarm" for him was sent to all downtown Boston police, and Animal Rescue League trucks and "prowl cars" continued scouring the West End neighborhood.

When first seen on the ice early yesterday afternoon, the dog was feared to be looking for some child or adult master who might have fallen in the river.

The theory of a possible tragedy was soon exploded, however, and the dog-versus-rescuers runaround developed into a hilarious comedy, with the ire of police and humane society agents mounting as their efforts and stratagems continued to fail.

At dawn today, the dog was still on the ice and police and Animal Rescue League agents were back on the job.

Agility and guile alike having failed them, the officers resorted to persuasion.

They baited a big wire cage with a four-pound beefsteak, then sat back to see if hunger would lure the ice-bound pup from his frigid and perilous refuge.

The cage was rigged as a box trap, with a trigger which would snap its door shut if the bait were touched.

While the official rescue party cooled its heels literally as well as figuratively, the dog on the ice was center of attention of a growing throng of interested and sympathetic spectators.

Onlookers included at least 25 or 30 men and women out giving their own canine pets a midday walk on the Esplanade.

PAMPERED PUPS ENVIOUS

The tethered pups, safe and pampered, looked wistfully at the free soul of their tribe, successfully defying recapture.

But their applauding barks and whines won no recognition from the collie on the ice. He accorded them the same lofty disdain which he showed toward the beefsteak in the cage-trap.

A stray dog on the Esplanade, his own mouth watering at the sight of the raw bait beef, made a dash to grab it, but was chased away by police.

During the resultant confusion the ice-bound collie decided to be ice-bound no longer. Slipping quietly down-river almost to the West Boston bridge, he hopped to a public dock and went ashore and about his private business a moment later.

"Nya, nya, nya," said the little dog,

"You can't get me today."

MYSTERY WOMAN HELD AFTER CHASE

Out of a mysterious pummeling of a Malden man, his flight and a three-mile police chase of a car that overturned, police today had a silent woman and a loquacious man in Malden court.

The woman, Miss Maria Jamrog, 42, who refused to talk, even to give her adress or make a plea, was charged with operating an automobile without a license, operating so as to endanger and having a rifle in her possession, being an alien.

The man, John Gryss, 35, of Ashley blvd., New Bedford, was charged with the larceny of a $27 overcoat and with having a rifle in his control, being an alien.

A not guilty plea was entered for the woman, while Gryss pleaded not guilty, said he had an alibi and was granted a continuance until March 23 under $500 bonds.

Because of the woman's silence, she was committed to Danvers State Hospital for a 35-day observation period.

Bartholomew F. Wyfjes of Eastern ave., Malden, cleared up her identity when he testified she was his housekeeper.

At 3 a. m. this morning, he said, she and Gryss demanded that Wyfjes go with them to New Bedford to sign some papers. He refused, but after they roughed him up some, consented.

Outside, he bolted, but the woman, seized him by the overcoat collar. Wyfjes slipped out of the coat and fled.

In Broadway sq. on the Newburyport turnpike, he found Police Sergt. Joseph B. Henry and other officers and told his story.

Police chased the couple and the car skidded on ice and overturned.

CENSUS BATTLE MAY BE SHIFTED TO COURTS

EVENING AMERICAN, SATURDAY, MARCH 16, 1940

Country-Wide Suits Now Being Planned

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—The "battle of the census" may shift from Congress and the White House to the courts.

This word came today from the office of Sen. Tobey (R.) of New Hampshire, who is leading the fight to prevent census-takers from asking citizens how much money they make.

President Roosevelt, defending the income questions yesterday, accused the senator of inciting the public to violate the law. Tobey charged in turn that, if the President considered an "unauthorized ruling" of the census bureau to be the law of the land, then the people should recall "that such were the tactics used by Hitler in gaining powers never sanctioned by the people."

Charles Tobey, Jr., the senator's son and secretary, told newsmen today that citizens in all parts of the country had written in, suggesting they were willing to seek injunctions against the income questions "as a violation of constitutional rights."

These letters were being studied, young Tobey said, with a view to bringing suits in representative areas throughout the country.

Administration supporters reported increasing indications that Sen. Tobey would fail in his effort to obtain Senate approval of his resolution declaring that the questions should be eliminated from the coming enumeration. The resolution was approved by the Senate commerce committee recently, 9 to 7.

Young Tobey reported that his father was returning here, after a brief rest at his New Hampshire farm home, to "make the fight of his life for Senate approval of the resolution."

Many Democrats and Republicans said there was slight chance of Senate consideration before the enumerators actually start work April 2.

Bride Takes His Pants and He's in a Fix

CHICAGO, March 16 (AP)—Erick Swanson has found a pair of pants. Now, if he could find his bride everything would be all right.

The boys over at the detective bureau outfitted him with an emergency pair of pants last night after hearing his story, which Sergt. Lawrence Gorey said ran something like this:

Swanson, 40-year-old Fox Lake, Ill., carpenter, and Mrs. Ellen Welch, 39, a divorcee, eloped to St. Louis Saturday in her car. She had $200 and he $4.

The honeymoon proceeded blissfully until they reached Bloomington, Ill., on their way back to Fox Lake. Mrs. Swanson, not wanting to "take any chances of being left all alone with the money," took her new husband's trousers, shoes and socks and mailed them to Fox Lake.

"She said she'd take my pants to make sure I'd stick around. I said, 'sure,' so she took my pants."

Thursday morning the honeymooners reached Chicago. The bride stepped out of the car on a lakefront parking lot and said she would be back in 30 minutes. Swanson waited for more than 30 hours before being rescued by police.

The bridegroom wanted to return to the parking lot but the police persuaded him to do his waiting at the detective bureau.

Hunt New Clues In 'Love Murder'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Officers moved swiftly today to round up additional evidence in the gruesome slaying and secret burial of Mrs. Anna K. Henson, middle-aged divorcee. Sheriff S. E. Stone said 49-year-old A. M. Phillips admitted the killing.

Phillips, a roomer in Mrs. Henson's home, was held at Orlando.

Mrs. Henson had been missing since January. Her body, wrapped in a sheet and oil cloth and bound with rope, was discovered buried beneath the floor of a small addition to a garage apartment she owned.

The sheriff quoted Phillips as describing Mrs. Henson as his common law wife and saying he slew her with a hammer in a fit of jealousy. He said he left the body in bed two days before burying it in the yard, later building the shed to conceal the grave.

Confirm WPA Layoff of 11,500

The long-threatened curtailment of WPA activities was confined today with announcement that 11,500 Masachusetts WPA workers would be among the 200,000 in the nation to be discharged April 1.

By June, it was indicated by WPA officials, an additional 25,000 WPA workers in the state would be dropped with some 2,000,000 others from the nation's payroll. Denis W. Delaney, state WPA administrator, estimated WPA workers in Massachusetts now total 101,500.

COURT FIGHT OVER WATERTOWN BEANO

A two-year fight by Watertown ministers against beano games found its way into court today after police spectacularly halted a gigantic game sponsored by World War veterans.

Facing charges of setting up and promoting a lottery was William J. Cabral, 45, of Newtowne ct., Cambridge, who, police say, grossed $150,000 yearly while conducting beano play under auspices of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars Posts of Watertown.

Middlesex County Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford took action immediately after the board of selectmen voted to revoke a permit for the game to be operated for the remainder of the week.

At least one thousand persons were turned away from the game in a garage on Watertown st., after Police Chief John F. Milmore announced revocation of the permit.

It was bank night, and in addition to the regular prizes, $1400 was to be given away for door prizes.

Bradford charged that Cabral paid the posts $150 weekly each for the use of their names.

Besides revoking the present permit the board of selectmen also voted not to issue any more licenses for beano in the town.

In announcing the decision of the board, Chairman Bernard McHugh said:

"The board of selectmen tonight decided to revoke the permit of the American Legion Post 99 of Watertown and the Burnham-Manning Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. We are convinced that the names of these two organizations are used as a subterfuge and that the game is run for personal profit."

Results will be announced Saturday.

F. D. Better, Plans to Go To Dinner

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt had a slight temperature today because of a cold, but his condition was said to be better than yesterday.

While waiting for the doctor's morning visit, he took his own temperature, which proved to be 99.8 degrees. Secretary Stephen Early reported. Early said this was slightly above normal, but that Mr. Roosevelt was improved.

Pending final word from Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, Early said he thought the President would carry out his only two engagements for the day—participation with Queen Wilhelmina of Holland in a radio peace broadcast this afternoon, and attendance as honor guest tonight at the White House Correspondents Ass'n's annual dinner.

Early said the President would go on the air about 3:12 p. m. (EST) and speak for about ten minutes on an international broadcast under the auspices of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America.

Undersecretary Welles, about to return from his fact-finding peace mission to Europe, asked the President before he left to participate in the broadcast.

Vendor Is Arrested at Home Of Film Actress Wendy Barrie

WENDY BARRIE
Lurking Man Is Held

Police Capt. Grover Armstrong said Bernard Ronald Robert Stone, 22, was arrested after dropping a note into her mailbox. Officers were "staked out" within the house after two previous notes were left there.

Armstrong said Stone asserted he had had "a beautiful dream" about Miss Barrie and had started to write a play for her. The first note, which the actress found in her mailbox Sunday, read:

"Dear Wendy, I have the most wonderful news for you. I also have a loving gift for you. I hope I will be able to visit you next week, either Monday or Tuesday evening."

It was signed, "Personally only for Wendy Barrie, Bernard Ronald Robert Stone."

The second note explained the sender was unable to come until Friday.

Last Jan. 12 Miss Barrie reported she was awakened by an intruder who demanded her money and jewelry. Informed she had neither in the house, the gunman talked with her for some time, then left without harming her.

Neck Broken, Has 8-Lb. Boy

BALTIMORE, March 16 (AP)—A 22-year-old woman whose neck was broken in a fall a month ago gave birth to an 8-pound 11-ounce boy in Franklin Square Hospital.

The mother, wife of Dr. D. T. Battaglia, and her son were reported "doing nicely." Mrs. Battaglia was taken to the hospital Feb. 16 after she fell down stairs at her home. An examination showed a fractured vertebrae.

A special collar-like device was arranged to keep her head and neck immovable. Dr. Henry Fullrich, a bone specialist, and Dr. J. Morris Reese, an obstetrician, kept her under constant observation.

New Hormone Found as Cure For Psoriasis

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 16—A new hormone treatment for psoriasis, one of the commonest of skin disorders, was announced today.

It offers hope for clearing up many cases of the disfiguring ailment which makes wallflowers of many pretty girls and interferes with the success of many young men, Dr. Lester R. Dragstedt of the University of Chicago told the Federated Biological Societies.

The new treatment consists merely of giving persons lipocaic, a hormone isolated from the pancreas gland in 1936.

Thousands of new "photogenic" persons who have been treated with sulfanilamide and sulfapyridine during the winter cold and pneumonia season were warned to stay out of the sun this summer.

Dr. H. F. Blum of the U. S. public health service's cancer institute at Bethesda, Md., told the American Physiological Society persons who have received drugs of the "sulfone" group are often greatly allergic to light and will sunburn more quickly and severely than persons who have not had the drugs.

Police Judge, 95, Wants Job 5 Years

LEBANON, Mo., March 16 (AP)—William H. Turner, Lebanon's 24 hours-a-day police judge, filed for re-election with a plea to be kept in office until he's 100 years old.

Turner, 95, has a standing request with police to call him immediately after an arrest—day or night. He claims his system saves the city hundreds of dollars annually by eliminating board for prisoners awaiting hearing.

DOLORES DEL RIO
Romance Ends in Separation

Dolores, Hubby Part; No Divorce Planned

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, March 16 (INS)—Glamorous Dolores Del Rio, Mexican star, and her art director husband, Cedric Gibbons, have parted. Today Dolores, who left her home and moved to Palm Springs, where she has taken a house, confirmed over the phone the report she and Cedric had decided to say adieu to their nine-year-old marriage.

In a trembling voice Dolores, who for many months has steadfastly denied there was any trouble, said:

"After months of unhappiness, both Cedric and I have decided it is best to part. I have no intention of getting a divorce. But, when marriage between two people becomes impossible it is much wiser to say goodbye. We are parting good friends and I think Cedric feels as badly as I do that we haven't been able to settle our difficulties."

She denied that she was in love with anyone but Cedric.

BRIDE, FREE IN HOLDUP, TO BE STATE WITNESS

Cleared of armed robbery charges, Mrs. Evelyn Dayhoff Carter, 19-year-old bride and former Quincy girl, today faced another hurdle of the law before she could resume a honeymoon interrupted in Virginia.

Charges that she took part in a Dorchester variety store holdup were dismissed in Dorchester court. But it was understood she will be a witness for the state at the trial Monday of three Hyde Park youths, who are alleged to have taken her in a rented car to Virginia where she married a marine after a rapid-fire courtship.

Patrolman William J. O'Connor asked that the complaint against the girl be dismissed in Dorchester court and she was put in the custody of the juvenile parole board.

Ivan C. Hight, Robert E. Brown and Lyon S. Hobbs, the Hyde Park youth, are under indictment on charges of assault with intent to rob and carrying arms in an automobile. Brown is also charged with having discharged a revolver while in a moving automobile.

The charges grew out of the probe of the holdup of a variety store on Robinson st., Dorchester, Jan. 24, by two masked youths.

When the former Evelyn Dahoff was extradited from Manassa, Va., recently, she left behind her marine husband of four days, Jay Carter.

FINNS FEAR NEW RED WAR PERIL

HELSINKI, March 16 (INS)—Finland's costly war with Soviet Russia was written into the country's history as a closed chapter today following a formal roll-call ratification of the Russo-Finnish peace treaty.

In a routine formality several days after parliament had sanctioned the agreement framed by Premier Risto Ryti and other members of the government in Moscow, the Diet last night ratified the treaty, 145 to 3.

Premier Ryti explained to parliament his government had no choice but to accept Russia's dictated peace.

"Our country, like the whole of Europe and western civilization as well," he said, "is still in the greatest danger. None of us can say what tomorrow may bring."

Meanwhile, Finland proceeds with her reconstruction plans.

There will, of course, be no demobilization and creation of new fortifications is expected to begin shortly, enabling Finland, with the aid of a projected defense union uniting her with Sweden and Norway, to preserve intact what remains of the country.

In characteristic fashion, the Finns intend not only to reconstruct in other parts of the country, but in Viipuri, Sortavala, Kexholm and other cities ceded to the Russians.

On several occasions in Finland's history lost cities have been rebuilt sometimes miles from the original sites. This was done in the case of Vasa.

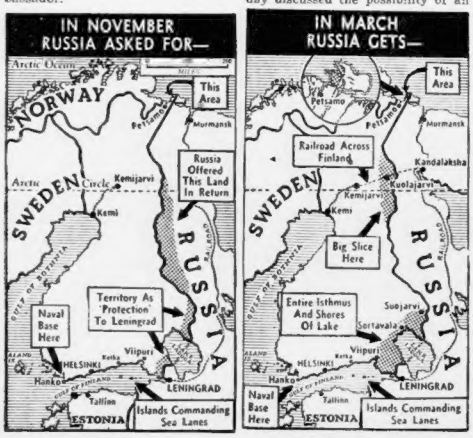
Plans for the new Viipuri to be "the most modern city in the world."

Sweden aided Finland in evacuating thousands of residents from ceded areas by sending buses and lorries to ease the traffic congestion on the railways. Swedish troops who volunteered for service in Finland are helping to move families.

F. D. to Oppose Russian Break?

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP)—Administration opposition to any rupture of relations with Soviet Russia was forecast today by well informed senators.

In all likelihood, they said, the State Department would tell Congress the best interests of the United States warranted continuation of relations with Moscow. Sen. Clark (D.) of Idaho, raised the question in a resolution for the withdrawal of the American ambassador.



ANALYSIS—Four months ago, Russia demanded certain territory from Finland. The Finns refused, so the Russians set out to take it. In the resultant war, after 105 bloody days, Goliath won. These maps show what it cost Finland territorially, plus 60,000 casualties.

FRENCH, BRITISH DUE TO SHAKE UP CABINETS

There was no immediate confirmation of the reports that a major shake-up of Daladier's cabinet was impending, but it was thought likely announcement soon would be made of a new "streamlined" government in which smaller ministries would be subordinated and the cabinet consolidated.

The projected revisions would form Daladier's answer to recent parliamentary criticism of France's failure to aid Finland in time as well as dissatisfaction over slow progress of the war itself.

The semi-official newspaper, Le Temps, recently demanded a full and immediate Allied offensive against Germany, warning neutral nations that if the Reich sees fit to violate their rights they can expect similar tactics by the Allies.

British Cabinet Shakeup Due to Speed Up War

LONDON, March 16 (INS)—British political circles again today discussed the possibility of an imminent reshuffling of Prime Minister Chamberlain's cabinet growing out of intense criticism for the government's attitude toward the Soviet-Finnish war.

While the bleak outcome of the Soviet-Finnish conflict served to spark the opposition attacks, it also brought into the limelight two other controversies grasped by critics in an effort to prod the British Government into greater war action. These were:

1—A charge that British business men have been soliciting commissions for placing government war orders with manufacturers.

2—The slowness of Britain's air expansion program.

Informed political sources predicted the shake-up may come around Easter. There were widespread guesses regarding the personnel changes but all were unanimous in the belief Chamberlain will not relinquish his post.

British Minister of Supply Leslie Burgin was the butt of critical barbs of Laborite Herbert Morrison in Commons. Morrison charged Burgin permitted the ministry of supply to countenance a "scandal" involving business men who requested commissions because they allegedly had government influence.

Sir Samuel Hoare, lord privy seal, and Sir Kingsley Wood, air secretary, also were mentioned as possibilities for demotion.

Japs Protest Fire By Soviet Patrol

TOKYO, March 16 (AP)—The government sent a written protest to the Soviet Russian embassy today, asserting a Russian patrol fired illegally on a Japanese patrol at the border of Sakhalin Island, ownership of which is divided between Japan and Russia.

The protest followed by a few hours the report from Toyohara, Karafuto, that there were about a dozen Soviet and two Japanese casualties in an armed clash at the border.

Meanwhile, reports reaching Peiping said both Russians and Japanese were reinforcing their positions on the outer Mongolian-Manchoukuoan frontier in Asia proper in apparent expectation of resuming the "annual war" which has broken out every spring or summer since 1935.

Serge Nikitin, Soviet charge d'affaires at Peiping, said he had received no information to confirm a reported Soviet advance, and Japanese issued similar statements.

It was said in Peiping that, despite denials, recent developments tended to confirm continued friction on the border and that no basis of a permanent settlement was in sight.

A truce ended fighting there last Sept. 16. A mixed commission, chosen to settle the boundary, ceased negotiations Jan. 31, reporting that views could not be reconciled.

A Japanese army spokesman said on Feb. 8 that there had been two recent exchanges of fire between Soviet and Japanese troops and reported "scores of illegal entries" by the Russians.

Britain Denies Nazi Bid

BERLIN, March 16 (INS)—There is no truth in reports that Nazi Germany has offered Rumania any kind of a "guarantee" that King Carol rejected, it was stated on high authority in Berlin today.

Outlining the actual situation, a spokesman declared that it would be far-fetched to say that any German or Russian guarantees exist with or for any Balkan country.

Instead, he pointed out, there are a series of "gentlemen's agreements" emphasizing that any provocative action on any side would be frowned upon.

Both the Hungarian and Rumanian governments, it was said, are showing themselves sufficiently shrewd politically to follow advice from Berlin and Rome and are playing a cautious waiting game while Germany and Russia intensify their efforts to bring Turkey "into line" and wean her away from her alliance with Great Britain and France.

Meatless Fridays Ended in France

German Envoy Makes Surprise Call in Rome

ROME, March 16 (AP)—German Ambassador Hans Georg Viktor von Mackensen made a surprise visit to the Italian foreign office today while Sumner Welles and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano were conferring.

The German ambassador's call led to belief that he might have taken an urgent message he wanted delivered to Ciano before he ended his conference with President Roosevelt's fact-finder.

German sources said, however, that he did not join the discussions.

Von Mackensen remained at the foreign office only 15 minutes. The American Undersecretary of State, who was accompanied by United States Ambassador William Phillips, left Ciano at 11:15 a. m. (6:15 a. m., E. S. T.) after an hour's talk.

Back in Rome, the starting point of his confidential survey of Europe, Welles started one of the busiest days of his tour by paying a 45-minute call on King Vittorio Emanuelle, whom he had not seen during his previous stay here.

Shortly after the American's arrival it was announced that Pope Pius XII would give him an audience Monday.

When Welles sails from Naples Tuesday he will have ended a 24-day tour that included Rome, Berlin ,Paris and London industry and agriculture to an unprecedented degree;

(A virtual German monopoly on Rumania's exports of oil, cereals and other supplies;

ASSASSINATED PREMIER

King Carol's differences with the Iron Guard originally date back to the organization's opposition to the political activities of Mme. Magda Lupescu, who is a Jewess and whose life has been reported threatened on several occasions.

More recently, Iron Guards assassinated Premier Armand Calinescu in the streets of Bucharest. King Carol, after wholesale executions, outlawed the organization and ordered the arrest of hundreds of its leaders and members, who have now been released under what amounts to a general political amnesty.

(The London Daily Express in a Bucharest dispatch said Germany also has succeeded in bringing enough pressure on Carol to secure for the Reich the right to organize the youth of Rumania's 750,000 German minority residents.)

Although the Iron Guard is being restored to good standing, a government spokesman insisted that the move does not mean a change in Rumania's foreign policy.

PROMISE FROM RUSSIA

There was no doubt, however, of improving German-Rumanian relations.

As long as two months ago, Dr. Karl Clodius, German financial expert and one of Hitler's leading foreign emissaries, informally promised while on a visit to Bucharest that Rumania would be left secure and unmolested so long as she fulfilled the obligations of her trade treaty with the Reich.

Soviet Russia was said to have made the same sort of informal promise. Authorities pointed out that under provisions of the existing trade agreement, Germany and Rumania are both pledged to keep the peace in their own respective spheres.

AFTER RICH OIL AREA

The determination of the Rumanian government to retain its present foreign policy was seen as evidence that Carol wishes to maintain a neutrality based on friendliness with both Europe's belligerent camps.

Russia has long coveted the Bessarabian districts of Rumania, once Soviet territory, and a tug-of-war has been under way between Germany and the Allies since outbreak of their conflict with Rumania's rich oil wells as the price.

The reconciliation between Carol and the Iron Guard, climaxing a sanguinary feud of long standing, obviously was negotiated to consolidate Rumania's position in the face of increasing war hazards facing her on all sides.

Reds Charge Allies Try To "Harness" Balkans

MOSCOW, March 16 (AP)—Izvestia, Soviet government newspaper, said today British and French troop concentrations in the Near East and diplomatic activity in the Balkans were attempts "to harness the population of colonial and dependent countries to the allied war chariot."

The paper claimed allied efforts were directed not only against Germany but against Italy as well.

Police Tell How Jailed Man Died

The Cambridge police chronological report on Charles Ormond from the time of his arrest until his death Friday in Cambridge City Hospital is as follows:

Patrolman Daniel J. Mullen found him lying in a doorway at 649 Cambridge st., at 12:05 a. m. Wednesday. He called the wagon, which removed Ormond to Central station, where he was booked for drunkenness.

Wednesday morning Ormond was taken to East Cambridge courthouse and placed in the detention room.

When his case was called Judge Arthur P. Stone was informed he could not appear as he was ill. Judge Stone continued the case until March 14.

Ormond was removed via the tunnel to the House of Correction and placed in charge of the doctor there. During the day he did not show any improvement and Sheriff McElroy ordered his removal to Cambridge City Hospital.

Shortly after arrival Ormond's name went on the danger list. He died at 4 a. m. Friday.

as an engineer by a Lancaster firm and was assigned to secret duty at naval bases to improve submarine conditions.

TELLS OF VISIT

The youth said he planned to discuss the affair with his brother, Charles Ormand, Jr., superintendent of the Edison Co., plant in Orange, N. J., and an uncle, whom he declined to identify other than as a wealthy, influential chain-garage owner in Orange.

When he visited his father at Cambridge City Hospital, his face was badly discolored, his chin cut and one eye was swollen, young Ormand said.

Hospital officials, he charged, refused to allow him to bring in an outside brain specialist to examine the patient on the ground that he was a "public servant" patient, and not a private patient.

"When I offered to have him transferred to a private room, they told me there was none available," the youth said.

Shamrock, Palm Meet Fifth Time

NEW YORK, March 16 (INS)—This year marks the fifth time in history that St. Patrick's Day and Palm Sunday fall on the same day.

The other occasions were in the years 1611, 1695, 1706 and 1799.

An ancient legend says:

"When the shamrock and the palm shall meet then Ireland shall be free."

ST. PATRICK'S DAY finds George McManus, "Bringing Up Father" cartoonist, up in the air, so to speak. Flying over Los Angeles, he proves himself a good Irishman by dining on corn beef and cabbage, with shamrock decorations, and a pretty colleen, United Air Lines Stewardess Mary O'Brien for company.

Valera Seeks American Aid

DUBLIN, March 16 (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon DeValera appealed to America today for "active moral support" of efforts "to end the dismemberment of Ireland" and to extend the freedom enjoyed by Ireland (Eire) "to the whole of the national territory."

The American-born premier referred to the long campaign of his government of Southern Ireland to incorporate the six counties of Northern Ireland (Ulster), which remains part of the United Kingdom

In a "St. Patrick's Day eve" statement, De Valera declared:

"In five-sixths of our island we are as free as any people upon earth."

Ancient prophecy said that when St. Patrick's day and Palm Sunday fell on the same day blood would flow in the streets of Ireland. Despite this superstition official Ireland looked for a calm observance but made the usual precautions against extremist action.

In his statement, addressed to "our friends in the United States," de Valera said:

"The political task that remains for us . . . is securing an extension of that freedom to the whole of the national territory.

"I am confident this task will be completed as others, equally difficult, have been. We only need that its urgency should be generally understood and that the assistance of good friends whose aid made possible what has already been accomplished should continue undiminished."

Sinking Australian Liner Calls for Aid

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16 (AP)—The Australian steamer Kahika, 1537 gross tons, reported today it was "sinking fast" after piling up on rocks in a pass between the tip of Australia and Tasmania.

An SOS asking for assistance was picked up by the Matson passenger liner Monterey and relayed to San Francisco. It is not known how many are aboard.

Baering Down On the News

We see no reason why the Senators should vote on the political contribution bill. Let the page boys take care of that one.

Hooking the Hatch bill up with the campaign bonus rider is all good clean fun. Once a declaration of war against Nicaragua was rushed through as a rider on the farm debenture bill.

It is absolutely true although Ripley won't believe it.

P. S.—The Democrats claim they are quite generous in not slapping an amusement tax on Republican campaign contributions.

HOLY WEEK TO START TOMORROW

With traditional ceremony, Christian churches were prepared today to usher in Palm Sunday—the beginning of Holy Week.

Holy Week, the most solemn week in the Christian church, commemorates the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem a few days before He was condemned to die on the cross.

Tomorrow, before the principal mass in every Catholic church, palms will be blessed before distribution among the faithful.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the momentous days preceding Easter, the ritual commemorating the passion and death of Christ will be carried out.

Thursday, too, the holy oils for use throughout the year, will be blessed. On this day, it is a pious custom for Catholics to make pilgrimages to seven churches.

On Good Friday, in most Catholic and many Protestant churches, special three-hour services, recalling the three hours Christ hung on the cross before he died, will begin at noon.

NEW ENGLAND TRADE NOTES

By Harry Chomes

The great problem of unemployment is ever with us, and State Rep. Leslie B. Cutler of Needham is concerned with our young generation who, of course, are the men of tomorrow. Mr. Cutler says:

"The people I know and talk with do not want government [illegible] made work at subsistence wages. They want real jobs, real work at real wages. In industry they know that if they prove their ability they have a chance to go ahead and fulfill their ambition. It is a tragic condition when the only ambition left a man after 18 months work on a WPA job is to hope he can get back on that same job.

"That Private Enterprise will win its way back and go forward to new goals nobody seriously doubts. It will be done quicker without government interference, and with the constructive help that Governor Saltonstall has given in Massachusetts. The committee he appointed early in November to make plans for better co-operation between government and industry to reduce unemployment is already having good results.

"Although I fully realize that the married man with a family to support should have just consideration in employment, I am very much interested in the young person out of work. The 1939 Legislature created a commission (Resolves—Chapter 38) providing for a study by the Department of Education relative to education and employment problems affecting the youth of the State.

STUDY YOUTHS' TRAINING

"The whole problem of vocational education and training of young people for available jobs is being studied. It is confidently expected that industry will assist by making a survey of the kind of openings there are for young people and how many can be absorbed in different lines of skilled work.

"On Saturday, March 9, I went to the Fore River Yard in Quincy and saw the launching of the Express fourth ship built there for the American Export Line. It was a real inspiration to hear the officials of the line declare they were going ahead with their program of shipbuilding. That is the kind of spirit that has always been the true spirit of American enterprise. Now 7300 men are employed at the yards and Mayor Burgin of Quincy briefly told of what it meant to his city to have that industry located there.

"It seems to me that even small industries in towns could help in the problem of unemployed youth by working in closer co-operation with the schools. Vocational guidance is an essential part of this work. Find a young person's aptitude, give him a chance and you have the greatest investment in America that it is possible for anyone to make."

NEW PLAN AIDS BANK

The unique Checkmaster plan started over three years ago at the Malden Trust Co. has brought over 2000 accounts to the Malden bank from all over New England. This checking account plan for everybody requires no balance at any time and the charges to maintain the account is 5 cents for each transaction.

The initial deposit required is $1 and the bank has a Recordak system which is a complete photographic record of every transaction in connection with each account. George H. Corey, president of the Malden Trust Co., has a high regard for this checking plan, which enables practically anyone to enjoy a checking account.

ACE CAMERMAN BILL JONES, of Boston American photographers staff, tells story of "Speed Ray" photographs to Newcomb H. Thompson, American's radio editor (left), as WBZ audience listens in.

CAMBRIDGE TAR DROWNS

BUENOS AIRES, March 16 (AP)—John Sheehan, 41, Cambridge, Mass., a member of the crew of the American steamer Argentina, drowned when he fell into the water while attempting to leap from the dock onto the ship.

'REAL IRELAND' TOPIC

The Rev. L. Connelly, S. J., will speak on "The Real Ireland" tomorrow afternoon at Hotel Somerset under sponsorship of the Boston Academy of Notre Dame.

MAE WEST is "My Little Chickadee" to W. C. Fields in Universal's picture of the same name at the Keith Memorial.

Mandy Kay Gets Globe Ovation

Comedian Mandy Kay and the Globe Burlesque Theater, as a combination, mean capacity houses. There was no exception to the rule yesterday when this theater's favorite long-run comic began a return engagement.

He has brought with him a complete new collection of tricks and now includes at least ten new characters in his repertory.

Marion Morgan

Much prettier is the co-starring Marion Morgan, a handsome dancer whose specialty is dreamy Oriental specialties.

Featured beauties are Mimi Reed and Eleanor Sheridan, to say nothing of the beauty parade of 30 dancing lovelies.

Assisting Mandy Kay in the comedy department are "Red" Buttons, Floyd Hallicy, Arthur Ryan, Irving Benson and many others.

Specialty acts include Jean Larue and her college-boy song stars, the Adelaides, the Congo Cuties and the Java Jooses.

Irish Program At RKO Boston

Larry Burke, famous Irish tenor of the screen and radio who was co-starred with Victor McLaglen in "The Informer," will make a special personal appearance on the stage of the RKO Boston Theater tomorrow only as one of several features to be added to the program in commemoration of St. Patrick's Day.

He will offer his popular repertoire of Irish songs and stories. Burke is a native of Dublin, Ireland, and a great favorite with the Irish people.

A special Irish motion picture subject and several Irish selections by Jimmy and Mildred Mulcahy, harmonica duo currently appearing in the stage show at the theater, be the other feature.

'Mulatto' at Copley Next Saturday

"Mulatto," controversial play by Martin Jones and Langston Hughes concerned with miscegenation, opens at the Shubert-Copley Theater for a limited engagement, beginning a week from tonight. The play comes to Boston following a successful trans-continental road tour, preceded by a year's Broadway run. The original cast and production will be brought here under the direction of Jones, New York playwright.

'My Little Chickadee' Held Over at Keith's

"My Little Chickadee," Mae West and W. C. Fields' first co-starring picture, is being held over for a second week at Keith Memorial Theater. Universal's mystery action-drama, "Honeymoon Deferred," with Edmund Lowe and Margaret Lindsay in the co-featured roles, has also been held over. "Canada at War" has been added to the program.

"My Little Chickadee" is grand fun. In a cleverly concocted story set against the picturesque background of the 1880 frontier, the curvaceous Mae and bulbous-nosed Fields have roles custom-tailored to their colorful talents.

Mae portrays a wise-cracking Chicago cabaret singer who causes a tornado of excitement upon her arrival in the wild and woolly wide open spaces. Fields is cast as a traveling medicine man and card-sharp who is fascinated by Mae and who struggles valiantly throughout the film to win her affections.

Also contributing importantly to the entertainment is an outstanding cast of supporting players. Joseph Calleia is cast as the crooked boss of the western town where most of the action takes place. Dick Foran enacts the crusading newspaper editor and Donald Meek is cast as a shifty gambler who looks like a deacon.

Ann Nagle, Fuxxy Knight, Margaret Hamilton, Ruth Donnelly and George Moran also appear in the cast.

In the film Miss West sings "Willie of the Valley," written especially for her. She is accompanied by the well-known musical trio, Gene Austin and Candy and Coco.

FBI Revealed in So. Station Film

Of vital interest to all alert citizens of these United States is the South Station Theater's featured attraction, "Inside the FBI," a short reel presenting the activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Other items in the two and a half hour program are a technicolor tour of New Hampshire, Pete Smith's "How to Bowl"; two color cartoons, "The Isle of Barbados," a Crime-Does-Not-Pay film, a Charlie Chase comedy and the latest newsreels.

MAURICE EVANS as "Richard II," opening Easter Monday at the Colonial. It was Evans in "Richard II" that set a local box office record for a Shakespearean production back in 1937.

ALWAYS FAVORITES—Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne return tothe Colonial's stage April 1 in Robert E. Sherwood's "Revelation."

MARIE LOUISE QUEVLI in "Higher and Higher" at the Shubert.

Evans Returns Easter Monday

Maurice Evans, relinquishing his sable role of Hamlet, is returning to Boston and the Colonial Theater Easter Monday evening in the colorful production of Shakespeare's "King Richard II," for an engagement limited to a single week.

It was in the role of this cruel, carefree young royal esthete, England's 15th century butterfly king, that the English star leaped into the proud position of America's Shakespearean actor No. 1 three years ago.

Boston had its share in establishing the fame of the Evans' King Richard, for the Boston Opera House engagement in October, 1937, recorded receipts never before equalled here by a Shakespeare production.

"Revelation," Robert E. Sherwood's first play since "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," will have its world premiere at the Playhouse, Providence, on Friday night, March 29. It will come to the Colonial the following Monday, April 1.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, whose last Boston appearance occurred in October, 1933, in "Amphitryon," are starred in "Revelation." Their supporting cast, recruited in large measure from the acting organization of the Lunts, includes Richard Whorf, Sydney Greenstreet, Edward Raquello, Montgomery Clift, Phyllis Thaxter and Elizabeth Fraser, to enumerate but a few.

'Ophelia' Ethel Barrymore's Favorite; Praises Theater

Ethel Barrymore likes to play "Ophelia" best. The first lady of the American theater whom Guthrie McClintic will present in Vincent Sheean's first play, "An International Incident," at the Wilbur Theater on Wednesday evening, has a word for "Ophelia" to whom Shakespeare has given so many beautiful things to say.

She's done Juliet, for whom she has no very great enthusiasm, and Portia, which she enjoyed somewhat more.

"—and that reminds me," Miss Barrymore said, "that Shylock is the only real gentleman in 'The Merchant of Venice.' I can't understand why anyone should object to the character. He is the great outstanding person in the play.

"The theater? Yes, it's doing nicely, thank you, despite the movies. They have two entirely different audiences.

"Dramatic schools—not all of them, mind you, but many—serve little purpose. They're for people of no talent. They're run mostly by amateurs. If you want to learn golf or tennis, you go to a professional, not an amateur. The same should apply to the theater.

"Young persons with talent should attach themselves to a performer already great in the theater, and learn that way."

By BETTY ALDEN

SOCIALITES played cops and robbers and an amicable game of Finns versus Russians at the exclusive Junior Dinner Dance at the Copley-Plaza last evening . . . This second in the annual series of dances is always a fancy dress affair and brings out a gaudy and assorted array of costumes . . .

Bob Livermore who holds more skiing championships than you could shake a can of wax at, was neatly gotten up to represent a member of Finland's famous ski patrol and the first person with whom he danced a couple of jitterbug steps in the lobby was Sue Ayer who was dressed as a Russian . . . Bob's bride wore a Tyrolean outfit . . .

There were hundreds of statesmen, grave-faced diplomats, cops, pirates, gypsies, Tyrolean maids and mediaeval princesses in the gayly attired crowd of dancers who sat down to a strictly American menu of stuffed tomato, steak, potato and peas, topped off with ice cream, cake and coffee . . .

Sparkling Red-Green Costume

ONE OF THE HANDSOMEST outfits was worn by Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Jr., who chose a sparkling red and green affair shimmering with beads and topped with a fancy striped taffeta turban and big gold sequin bow over her forehead . . . Isabella Grandin and L. Gerard Paine made quite a splash of color as they entered the ballroom . . . Bella looking as though she had stepped out of a surrealist painting with a headdress made of enormous bunches of grapes and a necklace of the grapes topping a turquoise gown . . . Gerry was a colorful Pierot, in gold with black pompons, black and gold ruff under his chin and a beauty spot plastered on one cheek . . .

You could almost hear the skirl of bagpipes when Monk Mason walked by in his Scotch tartan and blonde and rugged Marshall Fabyan, Jr., was a Russian cossack . . . Abigail Aldrich, who attended with her future hubby, Bob Hamlin, wore a dainty pink satin ballerina dress trimmed with rows of pink maribou . . .

Since no debutantes are eligible to attend the Dinner Dances, and only girls who have been "out" from one to ten years are invited, the 500 or so dancers are all more or less of the same group of young socialites which makes the affairs very congenial and pleasant . . .

The evening was begun in a convivial fashion . . . Like so many other young socialites, the Jimmie Parkers, Guido Pereras, Thomas Hunnewells and George S. Welds came on from a cocktail party at the Carleton Pikes' . . . The party served as a farewell for Abbel Parker who is off to Florida today to spend a couple of weeks sunning herself on the beach in front of her father's winter home at Boca Grande . . .

Alida Goodwin wore her camellias at the V of an old fashioned flowered chalis gown and black velvet wristlets and neckband added to the quaint effect . . . Connie and Arthur Dupee came as those now famous movie characters, Scarlett and Rhett, and Mrs. Browning Marean, Jr., in a dainty ivory silk wedding gown of the Victorian era was a startling contrast to her husband's "cowardly lion" from the "Wizard of Oz" . . .

Newlyweds Among Gay Dancers

MANY OF THE BOYS came as their favorite sports . . . Bennett Forbes looked as though he had just come in from a chukker of polo . . . Harry Fessenden, Bill Cox, Jimmy Grew and Harold Coolidge were jolly tars, Dick Pentecost looked like the lone ranger in a cowboy outfit and Talbot Baker was dressed as a bartender, which may or may not be classed as an indoor sport . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Williams (Eleanor Claflin) just back from their honeymoon at Sun Valley, were in the gay throng of dancers as were the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Boylston Adams (Ramelle Cochrane) . . . Jimmie Madden and Leslie Eustis, two of our well known figure skaters, attended in jolly groups as did the Nathaniel Hamlins, Olivia Ames, Dorothy West, who was resplendent as a De Medici lady, Ruth Talbot and her beau who provided a balloon popping interlude with their big clusters of balloons of all colors, Emily Davis, Isabel Farley with her fiance, Henry Wilder, Jr., Horace Soule, Mrs. B. Wendell Soule, J. Harleston Parker, and Alice Merriam who had all the stags guessing as to her identity for she was almost unrecognizable in a snowy white wig . . .

Still others included Phyllis Forbes as a sailorette, with her future bridegroom, S. Tudor Leland, Priscilla Thorndike in a lavish old fashioned gown of green taffeta with a fetching feather bonnet, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Chase, Alice Jaques with her fiance, Edward P. Roberts, Becky Ames with Jim Hunnewell, Mr. and Mrs. George Cushing, Mrs. Channing Frothingham, Jr., Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Reece, Jr. . . .

Career Girl's Wardrobe

By ANNICE BRINK

THE CAREER GIRL is the one to whom wardrobe planning is most essential. She knows that her appearance is important in a business sense; she cannot afford to splurge her all on "date" clothes, and look tacky during working hours.

She usually has a pretty slim budget for clothes, in the early days of the career. She has to plan to get the most out of every dollar, and to plan her costumes so that they are interchangeable.

She will need one suit for Spring. It might be a navy tailleur, to wear with crisp touches of white. Or it may be of checked wool in gray or beige shades. If the latter, she will have a plain skirt to wear with the jacket. Or she may prefer one of the costume suits that combine a smart frock of sheer wool with a matching jacket.

She will need a coat. It may be a slim-fitting, flared-skirted one of navy; it may be a reefer, or one of those smart gabardines, if she is the sports type. If she can afford it, she might also have a little jacket of dyed squirrel or sheared beaver . . . but not if she's going to have to wear it with everything.

She will have a navy or black dress, cut simply and well, with white pique accents; she will brighten the scene in a flowered print that is not too gay for working hours; she will have one good "date" dress with more elaborate detail, perhaps with the new blouse back and slim skirt. For formal wear, she will be wise to stick to black or white if she is limited to one evening dress a season.

She needs three hats . . . perhaps a felt vagabond, a smart be-quilled sailor of straw, and a beflowered bonnet for dressy occasions. She should have three pairs of shoes and keep the heels straight. How does your wardrobe measure up?

JANE BRYAN, one of Hollywood's most wholesomely lovely youngsters, wears frock of wool crepe, with a detachable white collar, that would be a splendid selection for the girl with a career.

Love

Better Give Up This Girl

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've fallen head over heels in love with a girl, whom I met at a party about three months ago. She has just informed me that she's engaged to a man in her home town. Although she claims to love me as much as I love her, she says she's going to keep her promise and marry this other fellow.

I'm not making enough to marry at the present time, as I have obligations at home. And I know she's not marrying for money, because her fiance is making only an ordinary salary.

If she'd only wait, I feel sure my prospects would brighten, as there is chance for advancement in my position. Why will a girl do these things? DESPERATE

A girl who is willing to marry one man while she's in love with another is not keeping faith with either man, or herself.

Some girls, to get out a difficult situation, say they will "always love" a certain man when they intend to marry someone else. Either her feelings are unstable or she's not quite truthful. Take a brace; the world is full of charming girls who will make a better wife for you than this one.

Easter Gift Tip

Perfect Bouquet for Spring

By ARLINE GOULD

FOUND! The absolutely perfect Easter bouquet of the season.

When the postman rings and leaves a square box, with the monogram of a very famous parfumeur on its cover, any girl's heart will leap for joy. But when she opens it and finds a breath-takingly lovely corsage of tiny everlasting flowers and fern, with four gold-topped bottles snuggled between the blossoms, she will be completely entranced.

This beautiful old-fashioned bouquet, surrounded with a paper lace frill and tied in gold satin ribbon, is fastened securely on a stand in the pale yellow and violet shades of Easter. You may keep it, with its four bottles of lovely scent, just as it is, as an ornament for your dresser-top. Certainly it would light up any boudoir.

Or you may detach the bottles from their wire clamps, and wear the corsage on the lapel of your Easter suit. Long after an orchid has been forgotten, and all the corsages worn in Easter Sunday's parade are dead and gone, the girl who gets this one will be wearing hers . . . and will be reminded every time she uses this lovely perfume of the good taste of the donor.

If you can do it with tact, do hint a bit to the lad who is certain to give you a remembrance for the holiday. This stunning gift costs only $5, which is very little for such a gift.

I shall gladly tell you which store has this corsage, if you call me at LIBerty 4000, weekdays except Saturdays, or write, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Read Elsie Robinson's Listen, World! column every day in the Boston Evening American. It is a favorite with thousands in New England.

Manners for Theater

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—When attending a theater with a friend is it necessary to thank the usher when he finds you the seats, and upon entering the aisle should we say, "pardon me?"

2—When anyone opens a door for you or holds it for you is it polite to say "thank you?" I always say thank you on these occasions, but I have watched others and they omit it and take the courtesy as a matter of course. Who is right? K.

1—Yes, if we are mannerly—and your letter and the way you frame your questions show definitely that you are—we thank the usher for finding our seats. And when we pass in front of people as we take our places in the row we say "I beg your pardon," or "I'm sorry."

2—I'm sure that you disapprove as much as I do the impolite attitude of people who take courteous attention for granted. Such aloof disregard of expressing appreciation appears absurd to people who have right thoughts about human relationships. One wonders what possible reward they get from being so hard and so callous as to be willing to omit that gracious "thank you."

Table Tribute to St. Patrick

By MARTHA LEE

WHEN ST. PATRICK'S DAY arrives we are reminded that spring is just around the corner. A dessert or salad in cool, refreshing green is a welcome sight on the dinner table—a tribute to St. Patrick and a promise that winter is departing and welcome spring arriving.

The sight and taste of these green dainties will act like a spring tonic to languid appetites:

GRAPEFRUIT MOUNDS

1 pkg. lime-flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
Dash of salt
2 grapefruit, sections free from membrane

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add salt. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Cut grapefruit sections lengthwise in slices. Arrange grapefruit slices on plate and unmold gelatin on them. Makes six servings. Note: For St. Patrick hats, mold gelatin in small, round, deep molds. Unmold on thin slices of pineapple, tinted green, if desired.

JULEP CUP

1 pkg. lime-flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
1 cup halved green grapes, seeded
Few mint leaves

Dissolve gelatin in warm water and turn into shallow pan. When firm cut into cubes. Arrange gelatin cubes in sherbet glasses, alternately with grapes. Garnish with mint leaves. Makes six servings.

JELLIED GREENGAGE PLUMS

1 pkg. lime-flavored gelatin
1 cup warm water
1 cup juice from plums
1 cup canned or stewed fresh greengage plums

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add plum juice. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in plums. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve plain or with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

CUCUMBER TANG RELISH

(Salad or Relish)

1 pkg. lime-flavored gelatin
1 pint warm water
2 tsp. vinegar
1 cup diced cucumber
½ cup chopped sour pickles

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add vinegar. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in cucumbers and pickles. Turn into individual molds, filling them ¾ full. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise. Makes 12 salt-molds.

GREEN PLUM SHERBET

1 No. 2½ can greengage plums
¾ cup powdered sugar
½ cup white corn syrup
1 cup pastry cream
Few grains salt

Drain the syrup from the plums, pit the fruit and rub through a sieve; add the sugar and stir until it is dissolved. Add one-half cup of plum syrup to the plum mixture, add the corn syrup and salt and mix until well blended. Pour the unbeaten pastry cream very slowly into the plum mixture and stir all the time. Pour into a refrigerator pan and freeze.

To get a deeper color for this particular occasion, you may wish to add a touch of green coloring to the sherbet, but for ordinary occasions, and this one too, the natural delicate green is lovely.

"For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes:

To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America.

To maintain law and order.

To foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism . . .

To preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War.

To inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, State and Nation.

To promote peace and good will on earth.

To safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy."

—From the preamble to the constitution of the American Legion.

TWENTY-ONE YEARS ago this week a thousand men, who had been soldiers in the World War, began the formation of a new organization.

At that time they put into form the preamble of the constitution of the American Legion.

LEGION MARKS
21 Years of Progress

Now the organization they founded ranks as one of the great institutions of the nation.

And the preamble of its constitution still holds good, not only in word and in spirit, but also in the practical terms of patriotic action.

There are today 11,591 posts of the American Legion, enrolling 1,039,989 Legionnaires, thousands of whom will attend the big Legion Convention in Boston this year.

In constant step with the million and more Legionnaires are the 400,000 members of the Legion Auxiliary.

Following them are the 70,000 members of the Sons of the Legion—destined itself, no doubt, to be one of America's great patriotic organizations of the future.

It is hardly necessary or indeed possible within the limits of the editorial page, to attempt to recount ALL that the American Legion has done during its twenty-one years.

The conspicuous thing that the Legionnaires have done is to fight for the welfare of America in peace, even as they fought for the security of America in war.

Because of what it has done, the Legion may have some enemies.

But it is honored even in these—for the bitterest enemies of the American Legion are the advocates of alien ideologies who are also the bitterest enemies of American traditions.

It is fitting, as this significant week ends, for all loyal Americans to contemplate what the Legion has been and is.

These many millions of American citizens throughout the length and breadth of the Union may be indeed grateful that the American Legion exists.

BOSTON IS CELEBRATING two important anniversary events—Evacuation Day and St. Patrick's Day. Both occur tomorrow. But, because the Seventeenth of March falls on Sunday this year, most of the observances take place today.

Coming as it does so close on the heels of the Federal Income Tax deadline, Evacuation Day cannot fail to inspire an abundance of serious thinking throughout New England and the country.

It was taxation without representation that brought on the Revolutionary War. But, though 164 years have passed since the British took flight and abandoned Boston, the twin evils of crushing taxation and lack of representation still exist.

George the Third has long since departed, BUT MUCH OF HIS SPIRIT REMAINS.

New Deal brain children, bureaus, commissions, agencies and a host of alphabetic bodies make laws, enforce them and frequently usurp judicial powers in wanton defiance of the Constitution and Democratic precedence. Evacuation Day celebrators should think seriously about these things.

St. Patrick's Day is happier, more hopeful. Fourteen centuries have come and gone since the Apostle of Ireland carried the message of his Saviour into Pagan lands.

Above all, St. Patrick was an Ambassador of Peace, an Emissary of Goodwill and an immortally bright spark of Christianity in a blundering world of darkness.

Would that the troubled, warring nations of Europe might turn today to this radiant patron Saint of Eire and follow in his peaceful way.

Contentment

IN pastures green they dwell serene, 'neath whispering willows cool . . . where birds songs ring and insects sing beside the mirrored pool . . . or knee-deep in the murmuring brook, amid the watercress . . . a picture of content they stand, symbol of gentleness.

If WE in Eden's garden dwelt, our every want supplied . . . would we find peace—would troubles cease?—Would we be satisfied?

IN GARNER'S favor as a Presidential candidate ticket is the fact that he has ideas of his own and the intestinal fortitude to stick to them. He is nobody's Charlie McCarthy . . . Total number of Americans killed in all this country's wars, including the Confederate dead, is 244,537. In only 15 years in the U. S. A. 388,936 people have been killed in automobile accidents. In addition to the well-known contributing causes to traffic accidents there is that of the preponderance of pathetically frustrated individuals who use the driving wheel as an outlet for self-assertion.

"AS a member of the brotherhood of burnished brows," writes a San Franciscan, "I ask you in all fairness shouldn't bald-headed men be given a half-price rate for hair-cuts?" "Sir, I think your demand most reasonable" . . . "Can a bachelor adopt a child?" is quaint query from Milwaukee. "Certainly, sir." It has been done . . . "You mention tall women quite frequently," writes a Seattle subscriber. "I have had considerable experience with a variety of women and I have found the tall women, while smarter dressers, are not usually as intelligent, loyal or affectionate as small women."

THE BRILLIANT Baird Leonard outlined her idea of a "Class A Husband" as follows: "1. His mother is dead and he is the sole and beloved son of an octogenarian with $12,000,000 and hardening of the arteries. 2. He sleeps with his mouth closed. 3. After he takes a bath the bathroom doesn't look as if the water main had burst. 4. He likes to wear evening clothes. 5. He likes all his wife's friends. 6. When he goes some place by himself he remembers what all the women present wore. 7. His private secretary is a man. 8. He never lifts his voice at the breakfast table crying to the deity for a decent cup of coffee. 9. He never tells his wife's age. 10. He doesn't like golf." As I cannot qualify on numbers 1, 3, 6, 7 and 10 of aforementioned I figure I must be a Class B Husband, maybe Class C. I am not sure about No. 2 either.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

CHICAGO, Ill., March 16—Such weather as we had Wednesday afternoon in Kokomo, Indiana. I was so discouraged that I stayed in the hotel all through it and held a press conference which was largely attended by high school students, then met a group of Democratic women who were accompanied by two gentlemen, and finally saw the WPA and NYA directors.

I was sorry not to see some of their projects, but I made up for it this morning. Unfortunately, none of the young people were on the job, so I only saw the results of their labors.

THE DINNER given last night before the lecture was very pleasant. Part of the choir of the Grace Methodist Church, which sang at the World's Fair last year, sang for us and added very much to our pleasure. This morning I was driven around the city.

Mr. Frederick, who went with us, certainly knows how to dramatize the story of Kokomo's comeback from the depression. He said that all the banks had failed and that only three of their plants were running. Still, without help from the Government, they reorganized and built up the city.

He bases the success which they have had on the fact that they have a successful understanding between the employers and the labor groups. They are an organized city which has granted even to unorganized industries the right of collective bargaining. During the depression through the cooperation and joint efforts of both labor and capital, they have rehabilitated the industrial life of the city.

MRS. ROOSEVELT
Deplores Rule of Force

They rebuilt some of the buildings of industries which had closed. New industries came because of the good-will which existed between the workers and the employers. They still have some unemployed, but if what they told me this morning is true, this should be one of the first places to find the solution to our unemployment problem. I have a feeling that they should be asked to do some intensive work and experimentation here.

IN A SPEECH made not very long ago, Milo Perkins suggested that the principle of the stamp plan used for surplus food and surplus cotton might be used in solving the unemployment problem. There might be people here who would consider working on that idea.

Apparently peace has come to Finland, but not a very happy peace. Somehow, it seems to me that the nations of the world must find a way of guaranteeing the rights of small countries to live unmolested within their own borders in the way that they desire to live, so long as they do not interfere with the rights of their neighbors.

Unless some such agreement is brought about, it seems to me that the rule of force will continue inevitably and that rule endangers all small independent peoples.

CAR GETS IN FILM; WYNN STAYS OUT

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 16—Keenan Wynn, now appearing in "Two For the Show," was called by Caravel Pictures, which makes commercial movies. He entered the official's office, and was told to walk across the room. Keenan obeyed—and the official said: "Sorry, but you're not the type" . . . "What type are you looking for?" asked Wynn. "Because I can walk across a room many different ways" . . . "We're looking for an auto-racer type," was the answer . . . Keenan had raced cars and motor-boats for eight years. He has won eight cups—four in each division and still holds the record for a round-Manhattan trip . . . "Wait a while," he pleaded. "I'll be right back." Wynn rushed to 57th Street, rented a racing-car, returned to the Caravel Pictures, and brought the official downstairs. Then he seated himself behind the wheel, gunned the motor and said: "Look at the way I can work this machine. I know all about racing cars" . . . The official was very much impressed, and had Keenan advise him about operating that car . . . As a result, he told Wynn that he still couldn't use him—but hired that car for the picture.

HEART-TUG STUFF, or "human interest": . . . When she was desperately ill a year ago, a pretty Roxbury girl named Edna Coffey was forced to forego playing the role of "Claudia," in "Pilate's Daughter" . . . Miss Coffey, who lives in Calumet st, will be letter-perfect in the role, it is safe to say . . . DEAN JAGGER GETS SCREEN CHANCE

By Louella O. Parsons

Dean Jagger

HOLLYWOOD, March 16—May I present Dean Jagger whose name you are going to hear many times within the next few months. He has been signed to play "Brigham Young" and so quietly was the signing done that no one even knew Jagger was under consideration . He was flown out here from New York by plane and after a series of extensive tests Darryl Zanuck put his okay on the selection and arranged with George Abbott to borrow him for this important 20th Century-Fox movie.

The stage history of Jagger, who is six feet two and a strapping lad of 32, includes an appearance with Ethel Barrymore and a star role in "The Unconquered." He was here two years ago at Paramount for movies but like many another was never given a chance. Well, "Brigham Young" which Henry Hathaway directs next month, ought to provide the path to stardom if Jagger has what it takes.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

FRED had been driving about the south for the past week, for his customers were far apart and this was the hottest trip he ever remembered.

At noon he stopped at a stand in the blazing sun. A couple of "cokes" and a sandwich would set him up. He ate slowly and started on his way reluctantly.

Heat, sun on the side of his face now. Getting sleepy again.

He had never picked up a hitch hiker.

"Too dangerous on the untravelled roads," he said. "Bet your life I'll never do that."

But he began to long for the sound of a human voice.

A BLACK speck appeared ahead on the road. As he drew nearer he saw a man tugging a heavy suitcase—smacking h's legs as he walked.

He slowed down a bit as he approached and the man stopped, looked back and eated his suitcase on the ground. He humbed westward wearily not really expecting anything but determined not to miss a chance. He sprang to life and picked up his suitcase hurriedly. He gave Fred a grateful salute, climbed in, settled back and closed his eyes as the hot sun fanned his face.

"Pretty darn hot, eh?" Fred said.

No answer.

He looked at his passenger who still had his eyes closed.

"I said it was pretty darn hot!" Fred shouted again.

No answer.

Fred let it go. Maybe the poor guy was all in. Let him rest a while.

PRETTY SOON the man stirred, looked at Fred, grinned and waved his hand toward a particularly fine field of cotton. A mat of cool white. He jerked his head toward it meaning "Swell!"

"Hottest day I ever remember," Fred said. And the chap continued to stare out the wi dow.

"Boy, if it would only cloud up and rain!"

No answer.

Fred jabbed him with his elbow and his passenger turned suddenly.

"I said I wish it would rain," Fred hollered.

The chap looked at Fred's moving lips, groped in his pocket and handed him a card. It said: "I am Deaf and Dumb."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

DESPECT your mistakes! Does that statement startle you a bit? You've respected your successes; been proud of them. But it has never occurred to you to be proud of your mistakes, has it?

No! You've hated your mistakes. The memory of them fills you with regret and humiliation. You wish you need never think of them again. You try to cover them up with excuses and evasions. But try as you may, you can't forget them. Like a secret poison they persist in your consciousness—destroying your self-respect and self-confidence.

Don't let them! Don't let them weaken and waste you for another hour! Drag your mistakes out into the open and face them bravely.

STOP TRYING to hide or run away from your mistakes. Face them with respect. Study them. Discover the reasons for them.

Oddly enough, most of the motives underlying your mistakes were fine, though the results were miserably muddled. You didn't mean to blunder. You knew you were taking a chance, but you felt it was a wise thing to do—a brave and decent thing.

Then, suddenly, everything went wrong—and everybody blamed you—condemned you, as if you were a deliberate criminal.

You long to cry—"But can't you see that I didn't mean to do wrong? Can't you understand that I really wanted to do a fine thing, even though it was unusual?"

But no one will listen. Their sneers jam the words down your throat. You grow furious at the injustice.

Presently you find yourself despising your mistake as much as they despise it. You vow you'll never try to do a decent thing again.

And so that act, which might have made you a stronger, prouder person—even though it failed—becomes a hidden humiliation, crippling your progress.

STOP IT! Stop being sorry because you dared to rebel, dared to experiment. Stop being bitter because you fell short of your dreams.

RESPECT THAT MISTAKE! RESPECT YOURSELF BECAUSE YOU HAD THE COURAGE TO TRY, EVEN THOUGH YOU DIDN'T SUCCEED. BE PROUD BECAUSE YOU TRIED—AND GO ON TRYING. DON'T LET THE JEERS OF SMALLER, SMUGGER SOULS BREAK YOUR CONFIDENCE IN YOURSELF, YOUR CONTRACT WITH YOURSELF.

A COUPLE OF OTHER GUYS

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By CHARLES McGUIRK

As soon as he became old enough to have any ambition at all, Jess Mahew wanted to be an actor. A moving picture actor. It came to him as he sat in the old Gem Theater in Altaburg looking at one of the old-time silent films.

"There is what I want to be," he told Eddie Andrews, who sat beside him, "an actor like that fellow. That's Henry Diamond. He gets five thousand dollars a week. He's got everything: horses, guns, automobiles, boats and even an airplane. He's one of the most famous men in the world. When I get a little older, I'm going out to Hollywood and get in the pictures."

"What kind of a car has he got?" Eddie asked. "I wonder if he needs a chauffeur. I'd be so glad to get a chance to drive and fool around a swell car like that. I bet I could cut an owner's repair bills and upkeep to almost nothing. I bet I could just send to the factory or go to a place where they sell spare parts and fix anything that happened to any car for just the cost of the parts."

"Yes, sir," Jess went on as if Eddie hadn't said anything, "I'm going out to Hollywood and get an extra job once in a while. And then some day my work will stand out and the director will say, 'Who is that fellow? Give him a good part in my next picture.' And it will go on that way for a while and the first thing you know I'll be a star like Henry Diamond."

"That's right, Jess," Eddie agreed. "Say, when you get to be a star and have all those things, how'd it be to be your chauffeur?"

"Oh, you and your automobiles!" Jess replied. "When I get to be a star, I won't need any chauffeur because I'll be able to fix my car myself."

"That's right, Jess," Eddie said. "But look, Jess, you won't want to monkey around much with any when you're a star because it isn't dignified. You'll have to hire somebody to do that work for you. So you'd better hire me. See?"

It looked as though that is the way Life would work out the destinies of both of them. Jess had the looks. He was tall and lanky and strong. He was a good-looking boy with brown hair and brown eyes and he was smart, much smarter than Eddie. Eddie wasn't what you would call good-looking. He was broad shouldered. His face was almost homely. He had black hair and blue eyes. He wasn't any too good in school, except in manual training.

BOYHOOD FRIENDS

They had been friends since they were small boys, but during the last year in high school it looked as though the friendship would be broken up. Jess' people had enough money to send him away to college. Eddie's folks were poor. He was all set to go to work in a service station. Things didn't work out that way, however. In their senior year, Jess' father lost his savings. It looked as though Jess would have to get a job like Eddie's. And that is when he decided that they would both go to Hollywood.

"You're going to be a mechanic," he pointed out to Eddie, "and it doesn't make much difference where you do it. Come to Hollywood with me. Then you can go on with your work while I'm busting into the pictures."

It sounded all right to Eddie.

The Cast of Characters in "A Couple of Other Guys"

JESS MAYHEW, who decides to go to Hollywood and become a high salaried movie star.

EDDIE ANDREWS his pal, decides also to make the trip but work as a mechanic in a garage or be some big actor's chauffeur.

He figured that there were more cars in Hollywood than there were in any other town of its size. They made the journey in a 1929 car which had more speed and pickup than the most expensive new models because both Jess and Eddie had worked on it, developing its strong points and eliminating its weaknesses one after the other.

When they got out there, Jess went right to Central Casting and registered. He lied, like all youngsters do. To hear him tell it, he had been in Broadway and in the straw hat circuit theaters for the last five years. The man who interviewed him didn't believe a word of his story. He just looked him over and mentally typed him as a typical small town boy.

Eddie started making the rounds of the automobile repair shops. He found there were no jobs. He finally landed in a small garage in Glendale. It was a good thing he did because the pickings were bad for Jess. He got no call from Central for three weeks and he couldn't find a job of any kind. Eddie kept the two of them until finally Central called Jess and told him to report at Universal for a mob scene.

BOUND FOR STARDOM

After that, Jess did all right. He got work pretty frequently. He started to pick up the fundamentals of acting. Because he had a flair that way, he was getting lines to speak within a year. He and Eddie roomed in the same rooming house. Both started putting a little money away. It was Eddie's idea to get enough money together to start a repair shop. Hollywood was the place for it, but anywhere in Southern California would do.

That year went by and another one started. Jess got into a stock company and made a little over a hundred a week. He was getting better parts all the time. Once he played a lead in a B picture. You could see that eventually he would arrive at stardom.

In fact, at the start of the second year, he was jumping four hundred a week in his salary and he put more than half of that away a week. He was at last beginning to save real money.

Now it was Eddie's turn to be in hard luck. He kept his job, all right but he wasn't getting a lot of money and the competition was so keen that he didn't dare quit and look for a new one. It took most of his money to keep him. His dream of ever owning a repair shop of his own was fast fading.

Jess was talking about Eddie's hard luck to him one day when suddenly he said:

"Why, Eddie, I have nearly two thousand dollars in the bank. With that as a nut, you can go to a bank and get the rest of it. Then you can start your garage."

"Oh, I couldn't do that, Jess," Eddie refused. "I couldn't take all your money. What would you do if anything happened?"

"What can happen?" Jess argued. "I'm on my way to stardom and when I reach it, money will be no object. But even if something happens, I'll have enough out of my share of your repair shop to tide me over. You and I'll be partners."

So Eddie agreed. He knew just the spot he wanted. It was on the outskirts of Hollywood in Los Angeles proper. The stream of traffic that flowed past it was terrific. And a lot of cars in that stream were sick cars. When he had explained it all to the bank, the bank looked up his record and sent a man to check up on the spot he had selected. It was while they were doing this that Henry Diamond, the star who was the real reason why both Eddie and Jess had come to Hollywood, stopped his car at the repair shop in which Eddie was working. There was something the matter with his engine.

Eddie stuck his head under the hood and twisted a screw here and a wire there. It took him about fifteen minutes. When he finished, the engine was better than when it came out of the factory. Eddie explained just what he had done and Henry Diamond asked him on the spot if he would like to be his chauffeur. Eddie thought a minute. He was going to leave this job soon anyway and he would like to drive for Henry Diamond, just to be able to say he did. He grabbed the job.

Jess laughed when Eddie told him about it. He said he guessed Eddie was reaching his ambition before Jess did and Eddie pointed out that Jess was shooting at a much bigger spot. Things were just about that way one day when Diamond's director sent a man to call Eddie over to him from where Eddie was watching a scene being shot.

"You're just the type of man I want for a certain scene. A typical small town garage mechanic," he said "Go to the wardrobe and get a monkey suit and come back here."

REAL PARTNERS

Eddie started to protest but Diamond smilingly told him to do what he had been ordered to do. Eddie went and got his monkey suit. The work he was to do was just a short bit of pantomime. A mechanic was to rush out of a garage and pick up a small child who had been struck by a car.

"Try to look horror stricken," the director ordered.

They shot the scene and it was so well acted that, for a moment, Eddie thought the child really had been hit. He forgot his part. He only knew that a child had been run down. He leaped toward the child and picked it up. He paid no attention to the grinding cameras. He looked down at the child, trying to see whether he could find any of its injuries. It was only when the director called to him to put the child down that he realized that the scene was just a scene.

When they ran the rushes of that day's work, Eddie's bit stuck out like a mountain. When the picture was cut, it stuck out even bigger. The upshot of it was that he was offered a five-year contract for more than any amount he could make by running a repair shop. He talked it over with Jess.

"These people are crazy," he said. "I tried to tell them I can act, but they won't listen to me. If I signed this contract, they would have to pay me plenty to break it, so I figure we would be in the money anyhow."

"We?" Jess asked. "Who?"

"Why you and me," Eddie said. "We're partners, ain't we?"

"Yes," Jess agreed thoughtfully.

"Yes, we're partners. So you go ahead and sign the contract and I'll take over the repair shop. I'm kind of homesick to monkey around machinery again anyhow and you always said I was a better mechanic than you."

So that's the way they did. Eddie signed the contract and Jess took over the repair shop. The only slip-up was that Eddie proved to be the year's discovery. He was a great natural actor. And the repair shop turned into a gold mine. Jess could fix cars and parts for cars that would give the manufacturers themselves pause. The repair shop is under the firm name of Mayhew and Andrews, and the profits are split 50-50. And as is Eddie Andrew's salary. They are partners, aren't they? And when you get to know either one of them fairly well, they will tell you this story. They call it "The Story of a Couple of Other Guys," on account of each man good at what the other thought he was best at.

THE END

Don't miss Berta Ruck's amazing and thrilling short story on this page Monday. It is called "A Marriage Has Been Discovered."

Eddie forgot his part. He only knew that a child had been run down. He leaped toward the child and picked it up.

LIFE SPAN OF MOTOR CARS INCREASING EACH YEAR

In spite of increased annual mileage and lower operating costs, the useful life of the modern motor car is getting longer every day.

A national survey covering all passenger cars in use shows that the life span of passenger cars increased 46 per cent between 1926 and the 1930 models.

Automobiles of the earlier vintage lived 6½ years on the average, according to the survey, whereas the 1930 models averaged 9½ years before retirement.

Certain difficulties in model year classification prevent absolute accuracy in the survey, yet the trend is unmistakable. The analysis show a median life of 7¼ years for the 1927 models, 8¼ for 1938 models and 9¼ for the 1929 models.

It is too early to compute the life of more recent models. However, constant engineering improvements in motor car production, together with better highways, improved lubrication and other longevity factors, all indicate that the motorists is getting more years of transportation service with succeeding models.

During the lifetime of the motor cars included in the survey when improved durability was being demonstrated, the average annual mileage per passenger car as estimated from gasoline consumption rose from about 6000 to 8810 miles.

At the same time, the index of operating costs, including gasoline oil, tires, tubes and repairs decreased 52 per cent, and the average retail price per passenger car dropped from $943 in 1926 to $766 in 1939.

500 Pictures, 50,000 Facts for Car Buyers

An eighty-page, simplified guide for the 1940 car buyer, containing 500 pictures and 50,000 facts, is just off the press, a triumph of research and impartial observation and analysis.

The manual, published by Motor Magazine, takes 13 well-known makes and tells the complete story of the style, comfort and performance of each model of each make. The cars analyzed are Bantam, Buick, Cadillac and LaSalle, Chevrolet, Chrysler, DeSoto, Dodge, Ford and Mercury, Hudson, Lincoln-Zephyr, Nash, Oldsmobile, Packard, Plymouth, Pontiac, Studebaker and Willys.

No attempt is made to advise or suggest "best buys"; the manual simply presents the facts and lets the buyer make his own comparisons and arrive at his own decisions. Whatever feature he may be most interested in—price, horsepower, weight, size, roominess, ventillation, fender shape, headlamp positions, grille design, windshield area—these and a hundred others are discussed both editorially and by page charts.

The classified price table should prove of special interest to those prospects who operate on a budget and who want to see in black and white exactly what cars are available for the amount of money they feel they want to spend.

One section of the manual is devoted to a description of the new features on the '40 cars.

Boston After Dark

—By GEORGE HOLLAND—

FRESH LAURELS GO TO ONE of the famous crop of Boston orchestra leaders, with tonight's Annual Newspaper Correspondents' Dinner to President Roosevelt at the Willard Hotel in Washington . . . Selection of Joe Rines' band to play the coveted assignment is a topper in a succession of steady triumphs by the personable Boston lad . . . Maestro Rines was a pioneer in radio and he has accompanied Sheila Barrett, Harry Richman, Milton Berle and many other famous personalities . . . Joe jumped from the Boston Mayfair to the St. Regis Roof two years ago, and has been roof-ing ever since . . . His flair for invention probably has not received the attention which the introduction of such dance novelties as "The Lambeth Walk" (in America) of "Pa'ty Cake," "Chestnut Tree" and "Boomps-a-Daisy" warrants . . . A legion of Boston friends will be with him in spirit tonight . . . It isn't his talent alone . . . Mr. Rines really rates the uninspired (but adequate) rating of "good guy."

THIS COLUMN'S NOMINEE as the best jockey in America (now that Johnny Pollard is an occasional rider only) is Rupert Donoso of Chile . . . We were surprised a year or so ago to learn that Dave (The King) Wilson shares the opinion, although Dave rates Arcaro alongside the South American kid . . . Without much no'se from the brass section of the press choir, Donoso won $60,000 in stakes aboard Many Stings . . . His performance yesterday tops his feats of the season . . . Donoso had three winners . . . Winning with every horse he rode yesterday . . . His average would be much higher if the jockey wasn't under call to a stable which lacks a single "solid" horse . . . Yet you couldn't pry the South American kid loose from that contract . . . His Mons is Eddie Regan the Lowell trainer who works for a New Jersey millionaire . . . Donoso thinks the world of Eddie, and its mutual.

CHATTER: Home for thawing, after a season in Miami, are James E. Murley, the young advertising whiz, and Frank Craven, the tobogery man from the financial district . . . The two had the best answer to hecklers (who joshed them about the unseasonable brand of weather the tropics gave forth this year) that we have heard: "Well, that's what we went to Florida for—the winter!" is the way the Murley-Craven rejoinder goes.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

MAYOR MAURICE J. TOBIN and Mrs. Tobin sat across the table from me at the Hotel Commodore in New York. The Mayor and Mrs. Tobin were in New York to see Archbishop Francis J. Spellman receive the sacred pallium from Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia.

The Mayor was tanned from the Florida sun, and looked eager and energetic. His appearance was a contrast to what it was when I met him before I left for California in January. At that time the Mayor was pale and was suffering from a heavy cold. His doctor had ordered him South, but he told me he wanted to complete the city budget before departing.

"I was in poor physical condition when I finally did get to Florida," the Mayor told me in New York. "The day after my arrival there I went out to play golf. At the end of the first hole I was in a state of collapse, and it was necessary for me to quit my foursome and go to the clubhouse to rest. I felt as if I didn't have any vitality left.

"Later came the telephone call telling me of the big snow storm in Boston. Sick or well I felt my place was at home with my people. I got the first possible plane out of Miami, and when I arrived in Boston the city was snowed under.

"When my taxi came through Dock Square, I could see mountains of snow on Washington street. I told the driver to stop the cab, and I got out to view the situation. I knew we were in for a real fight digging the city out.

* * *

"I DRESSED FOR the storm, but confess I had some doubts as to my own strength on account of my physical condition. For a week I kept going night and day. I do not believe I had more than three hours sleep any night, while I walked many miles through the snow in sections where men were working.

"I found Columbus Avenue blocked. The snow plows could not get through that street, and it was necessary for a gang of 500 men to hand shovel the street.

"At the end of the week I was still able to carry on. Nature had given me strength I didn't know I had. I must have been like the boxer who has been knocked to the canvas, and who struggles to his feet at the count of nine to come on with a new display of vitality. I have often heard of athletes possessing such a physical reserve. We all must have one. Otherwise I never could have accomplished what I did.

"At first there were many complaints about snow removal, but when people realized the severity of the storm and the condition of the streets in some of the surrounding cities and towns they agreed Boston had done a pretty good job. There was some damage done as a result of the haste of the operation of snow removal, but every emergency leaves some scars.

"When I got back to Florida, I secured some needed rest, and regained my lost strength. The sun baked out my cold."

I ASKED THE Mayor if he had won money at the races as had been reported in Boston.

The Mayor laughed.

"Name me one person who has won money betting on the races in Florida and you'll win a bet yourself," replied Tobin. "Of course I didn't win any money at Hialeah Park. In the first place I don't know anything about horses, and in the second nobody could parlay $2 into the kind of money I was reported as winning. I am still a $2 bettor, and so only can lose $16 during an afternoon.

"I was at first upset over the reports circulated in Boston about my race track winnings, but then decided not to pay any attention to them. Boston people now know enough about racing to know that nobody can beat the races."

The orchestra played a lively tune, and in a few seconds Mayor and Mrs. Tobin were dancing.

When one has youth, a snow storm or a serious cold are merely passing annoyances.

I am sorry the Mayor didn't win some money at the races. I was anxious to get his betting system. Now that the thoroughbreds will soon return to New England I am eager to get a dozen new betting systems. The 1,000,000 systems I have used in the past have failed. It has been suggested that instead of playing the mutuels I make book with myself. The book at least would win.

CALDER PRESENTS CUPS TO BRUINS, DIT CLAPPER

National Hockey League champions for the second consecutive year, Prince of Wales trophy victors for the third successive year and defenders of the Stanley Cup, the Bruins go through the formality of winding up their official league season against the hapless Canadiens at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Entrenched in first place by the narrow margin of one point, which is as secure as 1000 points, in view of the fact that the second-place Rangers have already concluded their season, tomorrow's outcome has little at stake.

The Bruins are definitely in, while Les Canadiens, in last place, are definitely out.

Yet, even though this is just another game, there are two features which may help swell the gate.

First, there is going to be an innovation, in that every adult buying a ticket may take a youngster under 18 with him on payment of federal tax

PRESENT THREE TROPHIES

The second highlight will be the presentation of three trophies.

President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League will present the Bruins with the Prince of Wales Trophy for the third successive year; Dit Clapper will receive the Dufresne Trophy for being the outstanding Bruins star of the year by vote of the local hockey writers, and Newton ,High School, scholastic hockey champions, will be awarded the Eddie Shore Trophy.

With cups galore and everybody under 18 admitted free, that is one with each adult, there may be quite a crowd on hand tomorrow night at that.

PLAYOFFS START TUESDAY

But the game is being overlooked by many hockey minded Boston fans who are peering ahead to the first round playoffs against those pesky New York Rangers which starts Tuesday in New York and then comes back here for Thursday and Sunday games.

Yet, tomorrow's game will be important for the Kraut line even though they have clinched the top three spots oin the individual scoring records, a feat never before accomplished in modern hockey history.

Milt Schmidt is leading the parade with 51 points, Bobby Bauer is tied for second with the third member of the "dynamite trio," Woody Dumart at 41. In fact the only person who can possibly break this monopoly is Bill Cowley who is in fifth place behind Bryan Hextall of the Rangers with 38. If Bill goes on a scoring rampage he may overtake Dumart and Bauer, although this is improbable. It would be great, though, to see Cowley move ahead of Hextall, who has a one-point advantage for this would give the Bruins the top four scorers in the league, another record.

THREATENS WEILAND'S MARK

Milt Schmidt with his 51 points has chalked up the greatest number of points that has been turned in during the past five years. The last time this figure was bettered was back in 1934-35 when Charlie Conacher picked up 57 points for the Leafs.

If Milt can come up with three points tomorrow night, he will be the third highest scorer in N. H. L. history. Top honors go to Coach Cooney Weiland, who hit the amazing total of 73 points in 1929-30, and Charlie Conacher is in second place with 57. The boys Schmidt can surpass are Busher Jackson with 53, Howie Morenz with 51 and Charlie Conacher, who caged and assisted to 53 points the year after he cnalked up 57.

MOST GOALS SINCE '34

Leaving Milt and going back to the terrific Kraut line it is found that because of their terrific scoring ability they have aided the Bruins in chalking up the largest number of goals for any one season since 1933-34, when Toronto had 174 goals. This is 11 goals better than the Bruins' record to date, which is 163, and chances are slim that the B's can cage 11 tomorrow night, even against the hapless Canadiens.

The 163 goal total which the Bruins now enjoy is the third largest achieved since the war. Outside of Toronto, the only other time this figure was eclipsed was back in 1929-30, the year the Bruins had the greatest team of them all. It was the year they won 38, lost five and tied one. With Cooney Weiland as the spearhead, the B's tallied 179 goals for an all-time record.

GARDEN SCRAPINGS

The Boston Bruins, by winning the National League Championship from the New York Rangers, have won an outright share of 15 per cent of the players' playoff pool.

The pool is divided into two sections, fifty per cent going to the teams in order of their finish in the regular season and the balance of fifty per cent in accordance with the way in which the teams finish in the playoff.

The National Hockey League guarantees a total players' pool of $60,000 minimum.

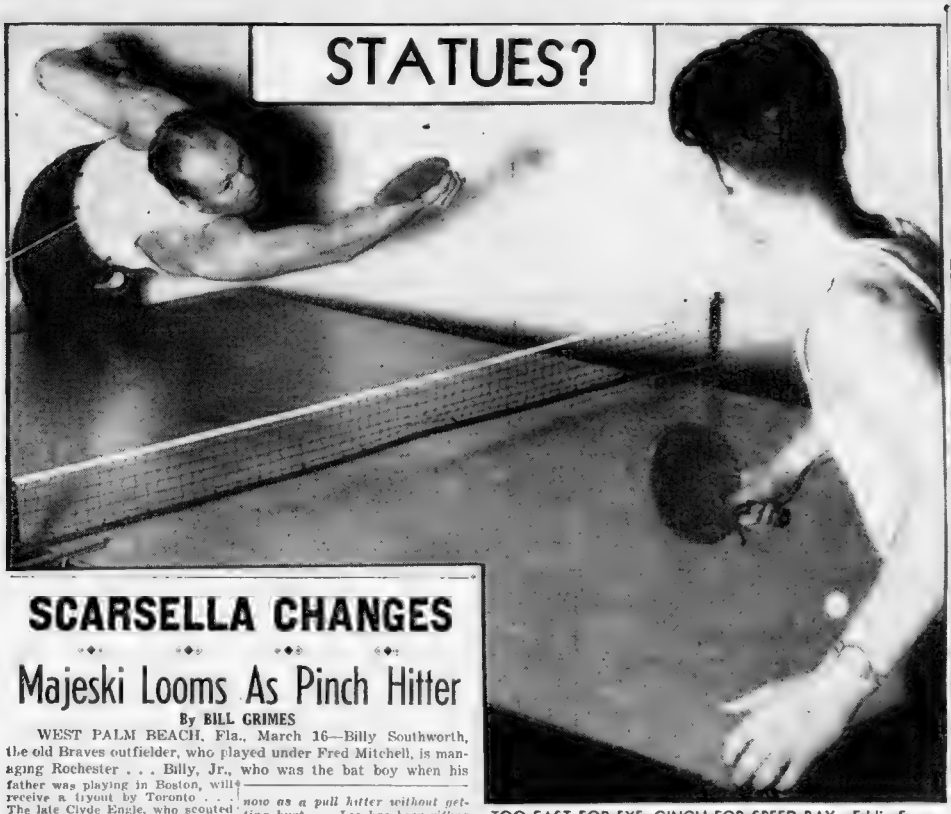
Roy Conacher is still ailing slightly from a bruised tendon and may remain on the sidelines tomorrow night as the 16th man with Red Hamill filling in at left wing on the Cowley line as he did in New York Thursday night.

The Bruins are now certain they have shaken the Rangers hex . . . two wins and a tie in the last three starts sort of proves it, too . . . with the Bruins definitely on top, they had the choice of playoff sites and agreed to open in New York Tuesday night and then come home for Thursday and Sunday night games . . . then it's back to New York for one game and a return to Boston with the teams alternating until one outfit has won four games . . . the reason Art Ross chose New York for the opener was that he employed that system last year with great results . . . he feels that if the B's lose the opener in New York, they have two games at home to straighten themselves out while a win in New York would give the Bruins a tremendous advantage.

If the Rangers had won the championship, they were going to insist on the first two games in New York and the next two in Boston.

Needles to say the ticket problem is really acute for the first two playoff games in Boston . . . no mail, telegraph or telephone reservations are being honored . . . the season ticket holders are not only getting first crack at the tickets but each holder is entitled to extra seats if they ar available . . . whatever ducats are left will be placed on public sale the morning of each scheduled game at the Garden.

STATUES?



TOO FAST FOR EYE, CINCH FOR SPEED RAY—Eddie Swenson, left, has just hit the ball back for a point so fast that Phil Wadling doesn't even see it. Note how he's still staring at Swenson's racquet. But Speed Ray camera stops everything so completely that even the ball is "frozen" as it flies under Wadling's bat. Swenson and Wadling are pros, at the Health Center, Boston.

SCARSELLA CHANGES

Majeski Looms As Pinch Hitter

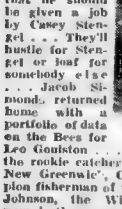
By BILL GRIMES

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 16—Billy Southworth, the old Braves outfielder, who played under Fred Mitchell, is managing Rochester . . . Billy, Jr., who was the bat boy when his father was playing in Boston, will receive a tryout by Toronto . . . The late Clyde Engle, who scouted for Toronto, discovered Billy, Jr., in the Canadian-American League last year.

Despite the fact that he is green, due to the fact that he is a hustler, Ralph Younker will outlast the more experienced Jimmy Outlaw, who has yet to show cause that he should be given a job by Casey Stengel . . . They'll hustle for Stengel or loaf for somebody else . . . Jacob Simonds returned home with a portfolio of data on the Bees for Leo Gouiston . . . Mike Sandlock, the rookie catcher who hails from New Greenwich, Ct., is the champion fisherman of the Bees . . . Art Johnson, the Winchester southpaw, is the runner up . . . George Metkovich's foot kicked up on him a few days ago and he went lame now as a pull hitter without getting hurt . . . Les has been rifling drives into left center and down the left field foul line for the past fortnight and he has added considerable punch to the Bees' offense . . .

Majeski

Casey Stengel would like to send Bill Schuster to Indianapolis, or somewhere . . . When Judge Landis asked President Bob Quinn to take Schuster to spring training, the ex-Toronto shortstop decided to become a holdout, which naturally caused the "little fellow" to hit the roof . . . Schuster is a very ordinary ball player, far from a major leaguer . . . . But he tops with himself . . . And if he could play as well as he will tell you he can, Eddie Miller wouldn't care to put on a uniform . . .



Landis

Les Scarsella was a dead left field hitter when he came up to the National League . . . During the year he played for Newark, Scarsella was ordered to pull all balls for the short right field fence . . . Just as soon as he joined the Bees, Casey Stengel told Les to go back to his natural style . . . The opposition will discover that it cannot play Scarsella

Dolly Stark, the National League umpire, is vacationing over at Palm Beach . . . That's right, Dolly is staying at The Breakers . . . Sec. Duffy Lewis broke out his new "Tools" (suits) just as soon as we arrived . . . He's really putting on the dog . . . Joe Gulledge and Bill McElroy were the added starters on this trip . . . They've made such fine impressions, that Manager Casey Stengel decided he'd like to see more of them . . . A year ago, Eddie Miller didn't wear any inner socks . . . This spring, Eddie is playing with the toes cut out of his shoes . . .

Stark

Henry Majeski has been hitting the ball farther than anyone in camp for the past week . . . He's a big league hitter and if Casey Stengel cannot find a spot for him in the regular lineup "Sunshine" will be used as a pinch hitter.

According to Bob Coleman, Al Javery, the lanky right hand pitcher from North Oxford, is faster than he was a year ago at Evansville . . . Lavery has a chance to make the Bees, despite the fact that he's only been "out" one full season and didn't get rolling until about July last year . . . He has the longest arms in camp, pumps fast ball by such good hitters as Tony Cuccinello, Les Scarsella and Buddy Hassett and never allows anything to disturb him . . . Art Johnson, the southpaw pitcher from Winchester, is trying to develop a better curve ball .

Fourteen fleet-footed sprinters will run as members of the Knocko A. A., all of which enters an all of maybe 1 to the race.

DiMaggio

Spectator in Sox-Red Games

SARASOTA, Fla., March 16—Dominic DiMaggio got out of bed this morning, tested his injured ankle, and announced he would limp over to Payne Field this afternoon to watch the Red Sox play Cincinnati. "The ankle's still sore in two spots," Dom declared, "But it's come along faster than I expected. I should be able to put on a baseball shoe some time next week."

Denny Galehouse was scheduled to start against Johnny Vander Meer in the box this afternoon.

All-Star Show Ends Tonight

The European Ice Revue swings into its last day with a matinee and evening performance today at the Garden.

About 5000 turned out for Friday night's showing in which the Simpson sisters, Margaret and Mary, were singled out of the cast of 60 as tops again. Ever since the show got underway Wednesday, this attractive duo has repeatedly given the audience their best and, last night, were forced to answer at least five encores.

The program is pretty well spiced with comedy as well, especially the act in which four girls, dressed as scrub women, put on an exhibition of ice hockey.

MISSES MOVIES

Di Mag Kid Frets Over Inactivity

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 16—Dom DiMaggio rested a tired wrist by sitting out fast practice today on a pose.

He had completed his usual heated batting practice when he felt a twinge. He took it easy, worked out in the gymnasium and batted a few long fly balls.

He complained his ankle has been weak because it was the bones in the bottom of his foot and not his ankle that were broken.

Dom DiMaggio

"Isn't it awful to feel like a million bucks, and yet have to rest like this in bed?" he grinned. "What is this jinx that settles on the DiMaggios' legs?" (Joe had his foot nearly burned off by a daithermal lamp in his first year with the Yanks.)

MISSES THE MOVIES

Dom stood on his left leg, his right leg with a cast on it, in more comfortable position.

"Nice movie in town tonight, too, and I can't see it. Every movie I saw here last week I had already seen in Frisco, and now this 'Broadway Melody' comes along and I'm anchored here.

"And look how nice and warm the weather has been since my incarceration. Last week it was cold and damp. Seems as if I'll never get to wear those new sport clothes of mine."

He turned off his head, one which he had brought from the coast.

COATS AND COATS

"Want to see a nice coat?" he beamed. Dom likes to talk about clothes, likes to wear them.

"Open that trunk and pull out the rack."

The trunk was opened, the rack was pulled.

Nice coat? A dozen coats. Tweeds and checks and plaids. Grays and tans. Sharkskins and suede jackets.

"Like that tan blazer? Brother Joe gave it to me for Christmas. It's a dandy, isn't it?"

It certainly was.

We looked at his closet. Five more suits. Business suits mixed up there. Sport shirts galore. Five pairs of shoes.

"Thought Joe was the dresser in this family?"

"Oh, I got a couple of suits," he grinned. "More at home, too."

WAIT TIL YOU SEE TOM

We inspected the dresser. Pajamas of varied hues, dress shirts, a raft of ties of all colors.

Did brother Vin go in for clothes?

"Gee, I don't know. I hardly ever see him, you know. He's married now and lives down around Los Angeles way.

"But brother Tom does pretty well. He'll be down here soon, too. Coming to Florida for the first time to see Joe, Vin and me in training. He ought to be here some time next week."

Who don't these WPA guys lean on a ball instead of a shovel?

Only one ring will be used on April 9 and 10.

Bobby Jones Sick Man

ATLANTA, Ga., March 16 (INS)—Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., father of the $5000 Augusta national golf tournament and perennial performer in the deep South's A-1 links event, may be in the gallery this year when the sharpshooters tee off April 4.

Jones says he is a sick man, suffering a muscular ailment in the back. But you wouldn't know it. At 38, the former kingpin of the golf world has kept his blue eyes keen, his weight down and his skin the color of a hickory nut.

Jones' best effort in the Augusta meet was 13th place.

Except for the Augusta meet, Jones has not participated in a major tournament since 1930, when he won the four-ply Slam of golfdom—the National Amateur, the American Open, the British Open and the British Amateur.

Advance Date For 'Y' Meet

Advancement of one week of the closing date for entries in the New England A. A. U. industrial track and field meet was announced today by Bill Hultgren, track director of the Huntington ave. Y. M. C. A. Entries will close Wednesday, March 20, instead of March 13, as originally announced.

The meet which is under the joint sponsorship of the Boston Y. M. C. A. and the N. E. A. U. development and track and field committees, is scheduled for the uptown Y track Saturday, March 23, at 7:30.

Four novice events will be featured on the program. Any New England athlete who has not won a prize in track and field competition is eligible to enter these events. They include the 45-yard dash, 600-yard run, 2-mile run and the running high jump.

There are eight industrial events which are open to all registered athletes except full time high school, prep school or college students.

Special N. E. A. U. medals will be awarded for first, second and third places. A. A. U. rules will govern.

Hoppe Bids For Title

CHICAGO, March 16 (INS)—Willie Hoppe, once "the boy wonder" of billiards, hoped to take the undisputed lead today in the world's three-cushion billiards tournament.

Hoppe, with three straight victories, is undefeated, but shares this position with Joe Chamaco, the Mexico City ace. Today, however, Hoppe takes on Arthur Rubin, New York State champion, while Chamaco is idle.

Tough Schedule For Rutgers Crew

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 16 (AP)—Rutgers University athletic officials announced today a four-contest schedule for the Scarlet varsity crew.

Missing from the program, because of a conflict in dates, was the annual Rowe Memorial regatta, staged by Harvard, M. I. T. and Rutgers at Cambridge.

The schedule:

April 20, Columbia at New York; 29, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; May 11, Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.; 18, Dad Vail regatta at Springfield, Mass.

De La Salle '5' Favored To Win Catholic Title

Semi-final round action of the seventh annual New England Catholic Interscholastic C. Y. O. championship basketball tournament graces the temporary court at the Arena this afternoon.

Local interest is focused on the opening game, Our Lady's high of Newton vs. De La Salle Academy team of Newport, R. I.

The second game brings together St. Peter's high and St. John's high, both of Worcester.

A championship game and also a consolation game will top off tourney action tonight.

De La Salle crashed past Cathedral high of Springfield in decisive fashion and is favored to cop the title, which St. Bernards of Fitchburg won last season. They hold a decision over the Pawtucket, R. I., team which battles Bassick high of Bridgeport, Ct., tonight at Portland, Me., for the New England crown. With the fast breaking and deadeye shooting of Co-Capt. Curtiss, "Jesse" James and Johnny Allen, the De La Salle team will take plenty of beating before succumbing either this afternon or tonight.

NEWTON SHOWS COURAGE

Our Lady's, which banged its way into the semi-final with a last minute five-point 32-27 decision over St. Joseph's Cathedral High of Manchester, N. H., depends on its intestinal fortitude and the individual brilliance of Capt. Tony Grella, fast-moving forward, and Johnny Cronin, rugged guard. Cronin, who played only a little better than two periods yesterday, was his team's most powerful gun. Cronin's chief attributes are a grade A type of alertness and a fine "underbasket" game.

The clash of St. Peter's and St. John's will mark the third meeting this year between the bitter intercity rivals. Each holds a decision over the other. St. John's won the first game, 33-17, but the second clash was taken by St. Peter's, 31-25. This afternoon's rubber contest should be a torrid affair, but, taking the team's work of last night as a basis of choice, St. Peter's must be made the favorite.

CATHEDRAL NIPPED

Though St. Peter's had to play its heart to the breaking point to cop a last second 32-31 win over a great Cathedral High team of Boston, and though St. Peter's certainly expended more energy than did St. John's, which had a fairly easy time tripping Coyle High of Taunton, 35-28, the former, on its all-round class appears to be the team which will meet the power-laden De La Salle unit in the tourney final tonight.

Rodak Signed For Salamone

Leo Rodak, ex-feather champ, was signed today by Eddie Mack to meet George Salamone of East Boston in the ten-round headline event of the Argonne A. A. show in Mechanics Building on March 28.

Last year in Providence Joey Archibald and Rodak fought 15 rounds for the featherweight championship and the Pawtucket lad received the decision.

Rodak has outgrown the featherweight ranks and now is a full fledged 135-pounder. From now on the Illinois thunderbolt will campaign among the lightweights.

Salamone, who has come along fast in the past six months receives the acid test from Rodak. If stopped, he will have to start all over again. If he can hurdle the fighting Chicago Boy he will be in line for some good matches throughout the country.

King Wins Nod, Denied Title

WORCESTER, March 16 (AP)—Howell King, Negro puncher from Springfield and Detroit, today laid claim and saw it denied, to the New England middleweight championship, after he knocked Henry Chmielewski, Boston Polish battler, to the floor for the count of three in the sixth round, and then went forward to win a split ten-round decision.

Arthur G. Plante, state boxing commissioner, refused to recognize King's title claim in a ringside statement after the fight, declaring that although both had entered the ring under the weight limit, the bout had not been scheduled as a championship, was not routed over the usual 12 round title route, and King has not been a resident of the state for one year.

Maine Team Sends in Largest Bowling Entry

EVENING AMERICAN, SATURDAY, MARCH 16, 1940

KITTERY KEGLER WON TITLE IN '39

By PINFALL

To the S. D. Warren Co. of Westbrook, Maine, goes the honor of forwarding the largest entry group to date in the fifth annual American-Record-Advertiser Diamond Medal New England Bowling Championships which start at the Huntington Club just two weeks from today.

The S. D. Warren Co. not only entered its best five-man team but also entered the five men in the singles and five doubles teams as well.

This beats the figure of the Brunswick-Balke-Callender Co., who also entered its best team and then put the five in singles, but the Brunswick outfit has only two doubles teams entered against five for the Maine group.

It is expected that there will be more entrants from Maine than ever before in the history of this indoor classic.

Interest in the Pine Tree State increased greatly last year when Donald Webber, a shipyard worker from Kittery, Maine, hit an amazing total of 393 for three strings to easily win the amateur championship. In fact his average easily beats that of any kegler in the tourney—amateur or open.

One remarkable thing about this tournament, though, is that nobody has ever repeated or retained a championship, and Don Webber, who rolled a 393 to win last year may come down in two weeks and hit a figure from 50 to 75 points lower.

Webber just had one of those nights that the pins fell as though magnetized. And it can happen to anybody who has been bowling any length of time.

You may be the one that will click this year, so you had better get that entry in pronto.

To date the entry list has been predominently amateur. In fact the first professional team entry did not arrive until yesterday, when a crack team of standouts from Gardner, Mass., sent their team fee along.

These open bowlers are not eligible for the coveted diamond studded medals. They pay a larger entry fee and also pay for their bowling.

This segregates the great bowlers and allows those who roll purely for sport to step up and get an honest chance to win a championship and a medal that is truly "terrific."

FOUR LOOKOUTS—All clear ahead. Academie Moderne girls prime for the great American-Record-Advertiser fifth annual Diamond Medal bowling championships at the Kenmore Alleys. This Speed Ray shows Ferne Merrill, Portland, Me., in front followed by Marjorie Muehling, Manchester, N. H., Virginia Shelley, Fitchburg, and checking all details in the rear is Janet LaMontagne, Springfield. One more needed for a complete team. Note how Speed Ray produces as clear a picture of the last girl as it does of the one nearest the camera.

Yale Natators Win Two Eastern Titles

PHILADELPHIA, March 16 (AP)—Al Vande Wehge, Princeton's Olympic backstroker, and the Yale bulldogs rode the crest of the wave today in the Eastern collegiate individual swimming championships at the University of Pensylvania.

Vande Werhe set one new pool record and aided in establishing another while the Elis, running true to form, garnered two of the five title's decided in yesterday's competition. The remaining six will be awarded tonight.

SECOND IN '36 OLYMPICS

The Princeton ace, who placed second in the backstroke at the 1936 Olympic in Berlin, ripped off the 150-yard event last night in 1:35.3 to erase the former mark of 1:37 which he set in 1935. His intercollegiate record, set last year, however, is 1:34.2.

Weghe returned later in the 300-yard medley relay to give the Tigers a 10-yard lead and they went on to hand Yale its first league beating and set a pool mark of 2:56.8. Harvard set the previous mark of 3:30.8 in 1938.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR CUTLER

Yale's Howard Johnson defeated the favored Eric Cutler of Harvard, unbeaten heretofore this season, to win the 220-yard free style in 2:14.1. The second Yale victory was turned in by Jim Cook, sophomore fancy diver, who scored 109.65 points off the one meter board.

The fifth title went to Charley Colwell of Army in the 50-yard-free-style in the tightest race of the night. Colwell's time was 23.8.

Kayak II Listed To Carry More Than 'Biscuit

By Associated Press

Racing circles are excited at the handicapping of Kayak 2d ahead of Seabiscuit, now retired, for the Dixie Handicap to be run May 8 at Pimlico.

Announcement yesterday of the weights given by Handicapper Charles J. McClennan came while a lot of people were still talking about the great performance of the 'Biscuit in beating his stablemate in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

In the Dixie, Kayak 2d will carry 134 pounds, two more than C. S. Howard's money-winning champion. Similarly surprising was the placing of a 130-pound package on W. L. Brann's Challedon.

Tony Pelleteri and M. L. Emerich, who own the well-known Millsdale racing stable, have purchased a big two-year-old colt by Display out of That's That from Alfred G. Vanderbilt for $6000. He is the biggest colt for his age seen around the Belmont track in a long time.

The famous green and white silks of the Shandon Farm may be seen again soon flying down the home stretches of the country's major tracks. J. J. Greely bought Dr. South from S. W. Block at a private sale at Tropical Park yesterday for the Nash brothers, owners of Shandon.

J. B. Partridge already has shipped several horses from his stable to New York, to be rested for the metropolitan season. Others, headed by Sandy Boot, remain in Florida. Sandy Boot is an almost certain starter in the $10,000 Tropical Handicap, closing day feature at the Coral Gables course.

Sandy Boot was beaten by a head yesterday in the Naples Purse, mile and 70-yard feature at Tropical, as C. W. Marshall's Royal Blue returned to form.

After winning three straight, Parshall's gelding had lost three races in a row, but made a game finish in this event to outlast a bunched field. He ran the distance in 1:42 3-5 and paid $11.20 for $2.

Twelve Winners In Four Days For Wilson

Twelve winners in the past four days of racing!

That is the enviable record compiled by Dave Wilson, champion handicapper for the Boston American-Sunday Advertiser.

Notwithstanding the fact that form players have been severely hit by the dismal performances "hot" favorites have turned on recently, Wilson continues to set a torrid pace, leaving his contemporaries far in the rear.

Only yesterday Dave spotted Praetorian in the sixth, and informed his followers that the horse had closed a big gap in a sprint race and was in a perfect spot for the mile and one-quarter test.

That his judgment was justified may be witnessed in the charts of the race which show Praetorian the winner, returning $23.90 for a $2 wager.

A flat $2 bet on Wilson's top horses the past four days would have returned $88.70, of which $24.70 was the net profit!

For day in and day out consistently, for the most authoritative information, racing fans couldn't do better than to follow Dave Wilson, a man who has followed and studied horse racing all his life.

WIN WITH WILSON!

Miller Confers With Bob Quinn

Leo Miller, of the Indianapolis club, visited with Pres. Bob Quinn on his way to Bartow, where his Indians begin training the first of the coming week . . . Jack Smith, who played first base for Toledo under Casey Stengel, in a new kind of hold out . . . He's quit organized baseball and is in Washington, D. C. . . . He is in the F. H. I., which department is organizing a ball club . . . Smith is in great demand as the club needs a good first sacker . . . Smith will play if somebody will fix it so that he can get a civil service appointment . . . And, speaking of Washington, reminds me of a sign I saw at the Tampa lumber yard, which although it doesn't pertain to baseball in any way, shape or form, is good . . . It reads "Beware of termites, especially third termites."

There isn't a pitcher in the Bees camp who is bearing down any harder than Dick Coffman, the big right hander, who was picked up by Casey Stengel after he'd been turned loose by the Giants . . . Dick chases fungoes every day and sees to it that Bob Coleman makes him run . . . He's down to 195 and wants to take off five more pounds . . . Manager Stengel believes that Coffman will be able to relieve for him this season . . .
